COUNTY BOND TOTAL GOES UP TO $2,809,463

1,500 'Back Attack' With E Bond Purchases Saturday, Chairman Reports.

$85,242 MORE ADDED

Need For $1,000 and $10,000 Purchasers Cited In Order To Meet Drive Goal.

Richland countians fired $85,242 worth of S bonds into the Axis last week-end to put the county Third War Loan drive total to $2,809,463.25 today.

More than 1,500 small bond purchasers "backed the attack" with E bond purchases for the largest part of the $196,161 reported for Saturday.

Chairman H. G. Brunner today commended E bond purchasers for their part in the war loan drive and told them to keep on with their purchase of $25, $50, and $100 bonds.

"We have to have lots of E bond purchases if this drive is to go over the top. And lots of people have to buy bonds since it takes so many to make even $10,000 worth," Brunner said.

At the same time he pointed out that with the continuation of the smaller purchases there would have to be more $1,000 to $10,000 purchases if the drive is to be a success.

To date, of the 5338 subscribers reported, 5114 have been E bond purchasers although the amount they have subscribed stands fourth on the list.

The county drive which is not quite one-half of the way toward its $6,060,000 goal today was lagging behind the national drive which was reported today two-thirds toward its goal of 15 billion dollars.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau reported that subscriptions throughout the country totaled $10,239,000,000 Saturday. He explained the seemingly great speed with which the money is rolling in is due to the fact that big buyers—corporations and the like—have made most of their purchases and that small investors must subscribe to the remainder.

Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., warned not to "throw our hats in the air . . . simply because we are on the home stretch in so short a time." He said the emphasis should not be that we have sold $10,000,000,000 in bonds but that we still have $5,000,000,000 to go.

At the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, Akron, where employes are getting three cents an hour back pay covering several months under a war labor board ruling, a "band wagon" manned by Firestone girls trails the checks as they are being distributed and usually collects a good part of the back pay.

Ticket Sale For 'This Is The Army' Enters Final Week

Mansfielders are going to have to hurry to get their chance to swell the Army Emergency Relief fund and get a seat at the premier of the picture, "This Is the Army" at the Ohio theater Friday evening.

Reports today were that tickets were "going fast." Ticket Chairman George Stephens said today there were only a few days left to get good seats for the benefit performance.

At the "arch-rib" hit, constructed by Stran-Steel corporation, for ticket sales headquarters, $3.30 seats have been the most popular. Salesmen have reported $5.50 tickets are being sold in blocks of four, six and eight, to groups of persons organizing theater parties for the charity show.

Tickets for the performance are priced at $1.10, $3.30 and $5.50. They are on sale from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. daily at the hut on the

Maybe some News-Journal readers missed the two announcements, week before last, to the effect that, the shortage of newsprint paper had forced The News-Journal to discontinue the Saturday comic tabloid, with the issue of Sept. 18.

That's the reason there was no comic supplement last Saturday — wartime newsprint shortage.

War Ration Book No 4

New War Ration Book To Last About 2 Years

War Ration Book 4, which will last about two years, will be ready for distribution at Mansfield school buildings late in October.

The new book which will be distributed simultaneously throughout the nation, will contain 384 small-size stamps, red, blue, green and black, and will cover all foods now rationed as well as possible additional needs for ration currency, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

The first stamps to come into use will be the green ones, which will be valid "sometime in November" on an interim basis in connection with blue processed food stamps in much the same way that the brown stamps in Ration Book three are being used in the meats-fat program.

The red and blue stamps will be used as before to buy rationed canned goods, meats, fats and dairy products. Red and blue ration tokens, or coins, will be issued "early in 1944" to be used as change for the red and blue stamps.

The black stamps in Book four are divided into 12 sugar stamps, 12 "coffee" stamps and 72 "spare" stamps.

Although coffee is no longer rationed, the OPA explained the

FROST AGAIN

Weatherman Says 'Heavy' One Due To Arrive Tonight.

Garden crops in the Mansfield area that Jack Frost missed last week are likely to be nipped tonight when a heavy frost is due to settle over northern Ohio, the weatherman predicted today.

Scattered showers today are expected to be followed by a sharp drop in temperature and a general frost throughout the state. Damage will be heaviest in northern Ohio, the forecast said.

If the frost threat materializes, it will be the third in the past week. The other two, however, were not heavy enough to cause much damage to garden and farm crops.

CHURCHILL IN ENGLAND AGAIN

Begins Preparing War Review; Parliament Expected To Raise Questions.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Prime Minister Churchill, back in Britain after a momentous six-week visit to Canada and the United States, plunged today into a task of preparing a war review to be presented shortly to the house of commons.

The review, which will be Churchill's first since his brief statement to commons July 27 and which is expected to be one of his longest, will open a two-day war debate when parliament reconvenes after a brief summer recess.

It is anticipated that during the debate the government will be asked, among other things, to explain why Italy was given

Badoglio Tells Italians To Fight By Side Of U. S., Britain

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio told Italians in a broadcast that it was their "absolute duty to fight on the side of the British and Americans against the Germans and against the few senseless Italians—no longer of such name—who put themselves at their command."

The text of Badoglio's plea which was made from the new "radio Italiana" on Sept. 16, was released for publication after it had been flown here from the Italian mainland.

(The speech thus ranged Badoglio's leadership squarely against that of the former dictator, Benito Mussolini, who on Saturday was quoted by the German radio as having made a broadcast urging Italians to take up arms against the side of Germany and Japan.)

Radio Italiana was described as the "new official radio of the Italian government" in the text released through official Allied military channels.

The marshal, who formed his government on July 25, immediately after Mussolini was thrown out of office, told his people, "do not forget that all talk about unconditional surrender is out of date and irrelevant to the changed conditions of today.

"We have intervened decisively against Germany following on the aggressive attitude of the

SENATORS TO CONFER WITH STAFF CHIEF

Roosevelt Avoidance of Query About Status Leads To Disturbing Charges.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— High ranking senators were quick to express their disapproval today of any change in the status of Gen. George C. Marshall as army chief of staff.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's avoidance of a direct question at his Sept. 7 news conference has led today to disturbing charges that powerful forces are trying to oust General George C. Marshall from his post as chief of staff.

On that date, Mr. Roosevelt was asked about a statement appearing in the Washington Star on the previous day that Marshall would be appointed commander in chief of Allied forces in the European theater of operations to direct any invasion based on Great Britain. The Star said either General Dwight D. Eisenhower or Lieut. Gen. Brehon H. Somervell would get Marshall's post here.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had not the foggiest idea about the reports. But they persist and multiply and persons here in a position to know say they are not doing war department morale any good.

Inquiry among some of Marshall's highest ranking colleagues obtained definite proof that there is powerful army and navy sentiment to keep him on the job here.

The general is to testify today before a senate military affairs committee manpower hearing. Some senator then may question the sunburst of weekend developments in the Marshall mystery. The newspaper PM, published in New York, printed a Washington dispatch yesterday saying that Marshall was currently top choice for the command of Allied European invasion forces. PM said some British sources thought Marshall would be given the job to pacify any Americans who might have resented appointment of Lord Mountbatten as commander in chief in the southeast Asia. The story said Somervell was the only officer now in Washington capable of taking over from Marshall here.

FLIGHT BARED

Badoglio Fled Rome By Auto, Ship, Says American.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA —(AP)— Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio escaped from Rome a few hours before the Germans took over the city and made his way to Allied territory by automobile and ship, an American official who talked with the Italian chieftain disclosed today.

After announcing the armistice terms Badoglio and his military advisors took a large number of government automobiles and made up a caravan in the early hours before dawn on Sept. 9. The caravan left Rome at 5 a. m. and sped to a port on the Italian coast, the American said.

There the entire party boarded an Italian ship and in broad daylight sailed down the Italian coast and into Allied occupied territory. The Germans apparently at no time were close to the party.

ON WAY HOME

Standley Leaves Moscow By Plane For Washington.

MOSCOW —(AP)— U. S. Ambassador William H. Standley departed suddenly from Moscow by plane yesterday and an official announcement said he was enroute to Washington for consultations.

There was little belief here, however, that he would return. The admiral, who is 71, had not planned to spend another winter in Russia unless presence was considered absolutely necessary.

Holds Capital Spotlight

Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. chief of staff, held the spotlight in Washington today as he took the stand before the senate and house military affairs committee and told congressmen that interference with induction of men for the armed services would be a heavier blow "than we expect from the Germans and Japanese." His appearance gained added interest as rumors flew through the capital that "powerful interests" were trying to oust him from the Washington scene to get their own way in the conduct of the war.

MARSHALL HITS DRAFT CHANGE

Says Induction Lag Would Be Worse Blow Than Japs or Nazis Can Strike.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Gen. George C. Marshall told the senate and house military committees today that if congress interrupts the steady flow of men into the armed forces "we will suffer a much greater loss than we anticipate from the Germans or Japs."

Asserting the American armed forces have reached their peak of training and are poised for aggressive deployment all over the world, the chief of staff said he was puzzled "by the reaction at this time."

It seemed to him, Marshall said, that if congress stepped in to interrupt the flow of men through selective service, "all we can do is reduce our program and change our strategy."

"Certainly," Marshall testified, "if you cut us now, we suffer a much greater loss than we anticipate from the Germans and the Japs."

With Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the fleet, sitting beside him, Marshall testified before a jammed hearing room on a

Mansfield Turns Clocks Back One Hour Next Sunday

Mansfield will join at least seven major Ohio cities next Sunday in moving the clocks back an hour to conform to the official Ohio time during the winter months.

The time change, scheduled for 2 a. m. next Sunday, is expected to cause some confusion for Mansfielders since trains will continue to operate on war time.

Charles J. Stecker, clerk of city council, said he had received a number of inquiries about the time change but almost no protests. Mayor W. J. Locke said he had heard of no opposition to the ordinance setting clocks back.

School officials were undecided today about the time they will use for starting classes and it is likely the matter will be submitted to

HOUSE BECOMES BROWN MUSEUM

Society Acquires Onetime Home Of Noted Abolitionist.

AKRON —(U.P.)— The Summit county Historical society has acquired the house where John Brown, noted abolitionist, lived a century ago and will convert it into a museum.

The will of Mrs. Charles Perkins who died last November provided for transfer of the property which had been in the family for 100 years, and granted $10,000 from the Perkins estate to maintain a museum.

Brown occupied the house while serving as an agent and overseer for Col. Cimon Perkins.

DRIVE STARTS

Tin Cans To Be Gathered Up Friday, Mind-Changers Say.

A new salvage drive got under way today in Mansfield, but civilian defense officials' mind-changing left a number of city residents confused about when the salvage collection will be made.

First announcing that tin cans would be collected all week, starting today in the First Ward, OCD officials then changed their plans to include a one-day can collection on Friday. Shortage of help in the garbage department was responsible for the change, Mayor W. J. Locke said.

Cans which were placed in front of a number of homes in the First ward today should be protected from rain until the city-wide collection Friday, said Mrs. John Pierce, OCD war services head. Cans will be picked up in all wards Friday.

Drive Inland From Salerno, Flank Naples

Fifth Army Advances 15 Miles, Seizing Heights Commanding Sorrento Area; British Take Gioia As Italians Clear Nazis Out Of Sardinia.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—The Swiss radio today announced that the Germans have closed the Italo-Swiss frontier. The report was carried by Reuter news agency, which said the order became effective at 10:30.

(By Associated Press)

American Fifth army forces, already in control of Italian territory extending at least 11 miles east from the coast below Salerno, have advanced 15 miles westward from that Tyrrhenian port and captured all the commanding heights of the Sorrento peninsula overlooking the bay of Naples, Allied headquarters announced today.

Thus the Allied Mediterranean army and navy forces under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, having expanded the Salerno bridgehead in all directions by land and occupied the islands flank the bay of Naples, command the sea approaches and a mainland gateway to Italy's second greatest port.

Lt. Gen. Mark Clark's troops, reinforced steadily by additional landings and by elements of the British Eighth army driving up from the south, continued to pursue the retreating Germans in the area of Battipaglia, captured earlier along with Altavilla. All the advances, headquarters said, were made "against decreasing enemy resistance."

To the east, British forces advancing northward above the Italian heel have seized Gioia, a road junction some 28 miles north of Taranto on the inland road to the captured Adriatic port of Bari, headquarters announced.

An Allied military spokesman disclosed meanwhile that all of the island of Sardinia had been cleared of German troops by the two Italian divisions which drove the Nazis across the strait of Bonifacio to Corsica on direct orders from Premier Pietro Badoglio, now in Allied-held Italian territory.

The spokesman said there were indications that the Germans were making a full retreat from the Salerno bridgehead and that "considerable columns of enemy vehicles were observed withdrawing."

Many of them never will reach their destination, however, for American airmen attacked one column of 1,800 enemy vehicles traveling north from Contursi, 10 miles east of Eboli, and destroyed or damaged 246 of them.

Meanwhile, an Allied fleet was reported in London to be steam-

Allies Bag 16 More Jap Planes as Air Battering Enters Its Second Week.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—What appeared a sustained and determined effort to reduce the defenses of Bougainville island by American aerial attack advanced into its second week today, with the enemy's air bases there further shattered and his air reserves further diminished.

Three surprise night raids by Mitchell medium bombers against Kahili and Ballale airdromes at the southern tip of the big Solomon island, followed by a daylight assault in force on Ballale by fighter-escorted Dauntless dive bombers and Avenger torpedo planes, marked the latest stage in this campaign of destruction.

The enemy, who has answered the challenge by bringing in squadron after squadron of interceptor planes, sent 60 aloft to meet the latest attack on Ballale—and lost 16, today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced.

These victims of the furious air war could be added to 84 other Japanese aircraft previously reported destroyed aground and in

The storm, now decreased in intensity, continued its north northeastward movement inland.

URGES CHECKUP

Sen. George Would Study Social Security Fund Status.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A congressional study of the expected drain on social security funds now held by the government, in the light of wartime developments, was suggested today by Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the senate finance committee.

George expressed agreement with Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), ranking member of the committee, that a close re-examination should be made before any decision is reached on doubling the contributions of employers and employes.

Employer and employe each now pay 1 per cent of the salary or wage into the trust fund from which the benefits are paid.

Ferguson Refuses To Approve Million Dollar Liquor Check

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today refused to approve a voucher for $1,000,000 which he said was issued by the state liquor department to cover a purchase of liquor for future delivery.

Ferguson said the money represented "an advance to New York dealers for whisky which is yet to be bottled and delivered in cases by still another company, over a 14-month period."

Ferguson said OPA ceiling prices on whisky covered by warehouse receipts which were advanced by the dealer as collateral represented only one-third of the face value of the check.

"As long as I am auditor of state I shall never approve of the advance of large sums of taxpayers' money without sufficient collateral or in advance of the receipt of the merchandise purchased, unless ordered to do so by proper court authority, as I consider such practice contrary to sound public policy," the auditor said in a statement.

Liquor Director Don Fisher said he might ask the attorney general to bring a mandamus proceeding in the supreme court to force Ferguson to make the payment.

The whisky was acquired from Foster from the Country Distilling company of Cincinnati recently, and will be bottled by the American Distilling corporation of New York under the label of "Old Rocking Chair," Fisher said the spirit formerly was marketed by Country under the brand of "Old Jordon" and "T. W. Samuels."

.S. NAVY, AIR NITS GREATEST IN ALL HISTORY

,000 Ships, 18,000 Planes Ready To Take Offensive In War Theaters.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The navy de-rtment, announcing with un-icealed pride that the U. S. vy has expanded into the great-sea and airpower in history, ved notice on the Axis today it American naval strategy is w a "strategy of attack."

American naval strength, as re-aled in the navy's announce-nt, now stands at the all-time h of 14,072 vessels—613 of m fighting ships—and 18,268 nes.

The navy's tremendous hitting ver and present attack strategy re demonstrated in the week-l attacks on Nauru and Tarawa nds in the Gilbert group and Marcus island Sept. 1, attacks ich showed that the navy is v able to strike deep into my territory and is willing to so.

However, the navy made no mes about the size of the job ead. While describing its fleet "the mightiest in history," its r force as "the most powerful r force in the world," it added intedly: "Its size is dwarfed ly by the size of the task hich confronts it."

The impressive force was built gely in three years of growth ce June, 1940, when the naval ansion program began—and is l growing at a tremendous e.

n July, 1943, there were $3,200,-,000 worth of new ships still the construction stage, fore-dowing a vast new addition to already unprecedented naval ce, the navy said. The greatest k of this huge fleet and air ce, the navy pointed out, was lt during the past three years the midst of war."

Navy aircraft production has ved ahead faster than any er part of the nation's air pro-m. From January, 1942, to y, 1943, that production quad-led.

To replace the navy planes lost Midway would have required year at the 1940 rate of pro-tion. Now it could be done in r days.

INDERS ARE KEEPERS' ADAGE DOESN'T SEEM TO WORK HERE

hat old adage about finders g keepers didn't work Satur-night for Paul Reeder, 31, 74½ East Fourth street.

eeder, who was walking be-Mrs. Emma Larscey, Grace et, near an East Fourth street ket, picked up a $5 bill which ped from Mrs. Larscey's e. Instead of calling to her, der went into his home with money, Mrs. Larscey said. An entified woman who saw a pick up the money supported Larscey's argument.

olice arrested Reeder on a y larceny charge filed by Mrs. cey and when he pleaded y today in municipal court was sentenced to 30 days in county jail. Judge H. H. ttler suspended the sentence good behavior.

ortly after Reeder's arrest, an who said he was Stanford te, Shelby R. D. 1, took Mrs. cey's $5 bill to the Stanley ket on East Fourth street, the spot where the money dropped, and reported he found the $5. He said he wanted to be honest and inquired if O. C. Stanley, proprietor of the store, knew of any one who had lost it. Stanley said he did and referred the man to Mrs. Larscey.

When police were unable to find any one by the name of Stanford White they came to the conclusion that Reeder had left the money with a relative at the time of his arrest and arranged to have it returned to Mrs. Larscey through an "agent."

Reeder denied in court that he had anything to do with the round-about way of getting the money back to Mrs. Larscey. He promised, however, to see that she got the $5.

NEW LAWS GO INTO EFFECT

Motorists' Responsibility and Measure To Combat Racket Now In Force.

The new Ohio motorists responsibility law, of vital importance to Mansfielders and other Ohio motorists, went into effect today.

The new statute provides for loss of driver's license if the holder is unable to satisfy a judgment against him after a motor vehicle accident or collision.

Also provided for in the law is the loss of license for three years in cases where the motorist is convicted of manslaughter, driving while intoxicated or under the influence of drugs, failure to stop after an accident, or commission of a felony in which a motor vehicle is used.

Operating a motor vehicle after the driver's license has been revoked may be punished by imprisonment for from two days to six months with a maximum fine of $500.

Another new law directed against "numbers" or "policy games" rackets also went into effect today. It provides a fine of $500 or six months' imprisonment or both for the first offense in selling a "numbers" ticket, and a fine of $500 to $1,000 or penitentiary sentence of one to three years or both for a second offense.

The measure penalizes only a person conducting games of chance "for his own profit," thus exempting from its jurisdiction bingo games conducted by church and charitable organizations.

Badoglio Tells Italians To Fight By Side Of U. S., Britain

Germans. We are cooperating side by side with the Anglo-Americans who are now accepting our assistance in the task of driving the Germans from the country."

These and other sections of his speech were the first public avowals rom any source indicating that the Italians probably will be accepted as full-fledged allies of the United Nations in the campaign to drive the Germans out of Italy.

"Moreover the British and Americans, our erstwhile comrades of the Piave (in the first World war) and Vittorio Veneto did not hesitate to state that their ultimate aim is the rebirth of a strong and united Italy," Badoglio continued, "and that they will not withdraw their help from us when the time comes to repair the havoc of war and to reconstruct our future."

The marshal conceded that when the armistice was concluded "it was our intention to lay down our arms and abstain entirely from acts of hostility against anybody."

"Even after the Germans began to attack us we were patient and did not fight back, hoping these attacks were only isolated incidents and not the result of a premeditated plan of aggression against us," he added. "Soon, however, we realized that whole German divisions were attacking our troops in Italy and outside Italy, were forcibly occupying our cities, harbors and airdromes, were pillaging our stores and the possessions of our citizens, while the German air force was bombing our ships."

He urged Italians, where outnumbered, to use "the terrible weapon of guerrilla warfare," and gave them instructions "to escape the country, cut communications, blow up bridges and dumps, attack isolated men and equipment. And above all do not give up, do not lose heart—persist."

Badoglio's declaration was both the first urging Italian soldiers and civilians to attack Germans wherever they find them, and the first urging his followers to make war upon whatever Italian troops align themselves with the Nazis.

His original proclamation of Sept. 8 announcing the armistice called upon Italians merely to yield to invasion by the Americans and British and only to fight against attack from any other quarter.

ADOPTS CHANGE IN FULBRIGHT POLICY BILL

House Committee Approves GOP Amendment To O. K. Post-War Move.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The House of Foreign Affairs committee today unanimously adopted an amendment proposed by Republicans to the Fulbright resolution favoring United States participation in postwar international peace machinery.

Adoption of the amendment—which tagged on to the resolution the words, "through constitutional processes"—assured passage of the measure when it comes before the house later today, house Democratic leaders believed.

Chairman Sol Bloom, D., N. Y., of the house committee expressed the hope that the senate also would adopt the resolution so that the two chambers might begin joint action on more specific proposals.

The resolution, sponsored by Rep. J. W. Fulbright, D., Ark., now reads:

"Resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring), that the congress hearby express itself as favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace, among the nations of the world, and as favoring participation by the United States therein, through constitutional processes."

The committee rejected an amendment offered by Rep. Karl Mundt, R., S. D., endorsing establishing of a postwar planning commission to analyze proposed forms of international machinery for maintaining peace.

If adopted by the house, the resolution would be the first expression of legislative sentiment on policy after victory in World War II.

The senate, however, is jealous of its prerogatives in the field of foreign affairs. Chairman Tom Connally of the senate foreign relations committee has called a meeting of that group Wednesday. But the tall Texan has expressed no interest in the Fulbright resolution. He has indicated that a resolution will be presented to the senate, but that it will be a new one drafted by senators and that no action there is likely before Jan. 1.

URGE LOWER VOTE AGE

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A resolution asking a vote at the next general election on lowering the voting age from 21 to 18 was approved by the executive committee of the Ohio League of Young Democrats at a meeting here.

SCHOOL STRIKE OUTLOOK BAD

Meetings Scheduled But Chances For Settlement Seem Slim.

TOLEDO—(U.P.)—The board of education and striking school maintenance employes, who have closed Toledo's high and grade schools since Wednesday, hold two meetings tonight, but no solution to the situation appeared in sight.

Representatives of the three unions, Firemen and Oilers, Operating Engineers and Building Service Employes, all AFL, were expected to attend the board of education's meeting and then report later to a union meeting the board's reply to their wage demands.

Approximately 37,000 students have been enjoying a holiday since the non-educational school employes struck.

World War 2 Is Costing the United States Ten Million Dollars an Hour

RICHLAND COUNTY'S Thirty-Six Minutes

We can pay America's total war cost FOR JUST THIRTY-SIX MINUTES by reaching our quota in the third war loan $6,066,000.00

Maybe it does not sound like much of a contribution. Richland county's goal for the War Loan Drive in September is 6 million dollars. Since the United States right now is spending 10 million dollars an hour on the war, this means that if Richland county reaches its goal, it will pay the total cost for exactly 36 minutes.

Offensive war is frightfully expensive. It costs four times as much as defensive war. General Marshall says that on August 1st of this year we ended the defensive phase and started the offensive warfare which will completely defeat the Axis and bring us to certain victory.

Our soldiers must have plenty of the weapons of war, no matter in what corner of the world they are fighting. They need planes, tanks, guns, ammunition, food and clothing. For 36 minutes Richland county has the opportunity to supply this need for its own 5,800 soldiers and the millions of other Americans fighting on land and sea.

Every 36 minutes that the army is adequately supplied with the munitions of war, shortens the war by at least that amount of time. If the last World War could have been shortened 36 minutes on the final day, 650 American lives would have been saved.

It is up to Richland county in September to see to it that it pays in full for 36 minutes of war. The quota of 6 million dollars in war bonds must be over-subscribed this month.

REVEAL BETROTHAL AT SUNDAY PARTY

Announcement of Engagement of Miss Marjorie Mitchell to Carl James Stough Made at Tea Given By Mother of Bride Elect.

AT A LOVELY tea given Sunday afternoon at the home of Miss Marjorie Lucile Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Mitchell, 248 Poplar street, friends and relatives learned of her approaching marriage to Carl James Stough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Stough, 601 Grant street. Mr. Stough is now residing in Palo Alto, Calif.

Mrs. George E. Price and Mrs. Paul Mitchell, sister and sister-in-law of the bride, assisted Mrs. Mitchell as hostesses.

During the afternoon, Jimmy Mitchell and Mary Ann Price, nephew and niece of the bride elect, delivered a special delivery letter to Miss Mary Alice Mitchell, a sister, announcing the coming nuptials.

Miss Mitchell will leave Mansfield Oct. 4 for Palo Alto, where the ceremony will take place.

Tea was served from a long table gayly decorated with white gladioli centerpiece and tall white tapers. The setting was completed with a large three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Stough poured. The home was beautifully decorated with garden flowers.

The honoree was presented with an electrical gift and a woolen blanket from the hostesses.

Out of town guests were Miss Mary Alice Mitchell of Dayton, Mrs. Alice Mengert and Mrs. Earl Rider of Lucas; Miss Clarabell Mengert of Ashland and Mrs. Nick Marion of Columbus.

Both the prospective bride and groom are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school. Miss Mitchell graduated from the Columbus School of Beauty Culture in Columbus. She is now employed at the DeMilo Beauty salon.

Mr. Stough also graduated from Tri State university at Angola, Ind., where he was affiliated with the Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity. He is now an aeronautical engineer at Ames Laboratory, Moffet field, Calif.

SEEK FUNDS

BUCYRUS — A federally financed recreation program for service men will be established here by Oct. 1, if application papers filed in Columbus last week are approved, according to E. B. Hagaman, of the recreational committee of the civilian defense council here.

Application has been made for a federal grant for a 14 month period from Oct. 1, 1943 to Dec. 31, 1944, which will provide funds to establish a recreational center and place personnel in charge of the work.

The move to secure federal aid in setting up the program here was made after the population of Camp Millard grew to such a figure that present facilities for recreation became inadequate.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Sept. 21.

The astral vibrations ruling on this day are generally deemed as adverse with many tenacious obstacles and difficult situations, best surmounted by persistent effort, patience and fortitude, backed up by well organized plans and attention to details. It is advisable to "go it alone" as but little encouragement is to be expected from others. The way may be beset with delays, trickery and intrigue, and it might be dangerous to sign papers. Protect the health and that of the family, as well.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year trying and taxing their resources, as there may be delays and disappointments, with stubborn obstacles, depressions and limitations. These may best be surmounted by dogged determination, industry and application, together with well laid plans and policies, and attention to system and detail. It should be a program of individual effort as elders and superiors may not be cooperative or friendly.

A child born on this day should be studious, orderly, and may be aloof and suspicious. It may suffer from duplicity, fraud and intrigue, in both business and personal affiliations.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Before answering Ronald's agitated question, I crossed to him, put a reassuring hand on his shoulder and bent over the desk, sure that Mary and Noel, already absorbed in conversation, could not possibly hear what I was saying.

"Yes, Father is coming over right away, Ronald," I said, "but—"

Having Difficulties.

"And he'll want this letter finished when he does come," he burst out, "and I'm having an awful time writing it! I don't know how to tell Carolyn about the woman coming down with her and all. I don't know how she'll take it."

Subconsciously he had lowered his own voice to a murmur, and I put a bit of emphasis into my own quiet response.

"No, he won't expect it to be finished, I am sure," I said. "There isn't so much hurry about the letter anyway, just so it makes the afternoon mail. You can take it over to the main postoffice yourself and put a special delivery stamp on it.

"Father is coming over about those 'personals' to Marion," I went on "so he won't be thinking about the letter. If he sees you're at work on it, and that you'll be finished in a reasonable time, he'll be satisfied. But if you've made a beginning, I'm sure you can finish very quickly, perhaps before he leaves. It should be very short, you know—just long enough to make Carolyn understand that she is to hold herself in readiness to come down. I shouldn't worry about the phraseology. Use your usual affectionate phrases at the beginning and the end, but for the rest of it, don't try to gloss over anything. Just say you're writing the letter at my father's request and make it very brief and business-like."

Ronald drew a long breath of relief.

"You always cut the Gordian knot, Aunt Madge," he said gratefully, "and I'll hurry things up. But"—he hesitated.—"would it be possible for me to see those 'personals'?"

"Later, yes," I decided promptly. "If you don't actually see them, I can recite them for you, word for word. But there isn't time now. Father will be here at any moment, and he must not be kept waiting, you know."

"Yes, I know," he agreed, dully; then turned feverishly back to his writing. I pressed my hand encouragingly on his shoulder as I turned away.

"That's a good soldier, Ronald!" I whispered, and his fervent answering whisper, "Thank you!" had just been uttered when the knocker on the door heralded my father's arrival.

The Chief Arrives.

The "Chief" came in as hurriedly as I ever had seen him.

"I've sent for Reed, my 'odd jobs' man," he said. "He'll take the personals around to the newspaper offices. I suppose you've made only one draft?" he went on, with an air of hoping we had made more.

"Only one," I said firmly, "for we had to have your approval. But I can help Mary make copies."

His brows cleared, and he reached for the paper which Mary was holding out to him. When he had read it through, he handed it back to her and spoke with definite approval.

"Very good, indeed!" he commended. "There won't have to be a word changed."

"Thanks to Aunt Madge," Mary said, quick to be sure that the credit was to be properly awarded.

"But who translated the code?" I flashed back.

"Never mind the compliments," my father said, smiling. "Get busy on the copies, both of you. I won't send Reed over here. I'll come back myself as soon as you telephone me that nine copies are ready. And don't forget, Margaret, we have an appointment she doesn't suspect with Ruth Hayes at Hal Meredith's office within the hour. We mustn't be late. But I think you'll have time to help Mary with the copies of the personals. Oh,—how about Ronald and Noel helping. Have you finished your letter to Carolyn, Ronald?"

"Not quite, sir," the boy replied, "but it's almost done."

"Then put it aside for now, and get busy copying these. Your aunt Margaret can dictate, and you three can each do three 'personals.' In that way, they'll be done quickly.

ALLIES FIRMLY HOLD GATEWAY TO MAINLAND

Gain 15 Miles From Salerno as Sea Thrusts Flank Port of Naples.

ing up the Aegean sea off the coast of Turkey, stirring fresh talk of a Balkan invasion. London papers quoted Italian refugees, who reached Turkey and reported the concentration of warships, as saying that Allied forces had occupied Castelrosso, southernmost island in the Dodecanese four miles from the Turkish coast.

Russia's victorious armies sped on toward Smolensk and Kiev, the two great German bastions on the Dnieper river, after cracking the gateway cities of Yartsevo and Dukhovschina within 30 miles of Smolensk and reaching a point only 42 miles from Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

At Allied headquarters in North Africa, the military spokesman declared that the Fifth army had "advanced north of Battipaglia in the face of stubborn opposition" and that small gains had been made in the vicinity of Montecorvino.

He said units of the British Fifth corps which captured Gioia ran into many minefields and booby traps, but saw few Germans.

There was little official news of the British Eighth army, which advanced 250 miles up Italy's west coast to join the Fifth army, but a correspondent, writing yesterday from the Salerno area, said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's men were pouring in from the south by the thousands and pulling abreast of the troops under Clark's command.

Other correspondents considered it possible that the German withdrawal reported by American airmen near Contursi might have been hastened by the British Eighth army cutting due north past the Salerno bridgehead.

Commenting on the strategic value of the Sorrento peninsula, the headquarters spokesman said: "As we control all the heights of the Sorrento peninsula we undoubtedly control all of the peninsula since it is unlikely the Germans would stay in the lower parts just to be destroyed."

The Allies were in possession of Amaefi and other towns on the south side of the peninsula which extends into the sea 22 miles west of Salerno.

Naples lies just 12 miles across the water from the Sorrento heights, within range of Allied artillery which also is presumably in position to shell the naval base of Castellammare and the railway town of Torre Annunziata, both of the lower elbow of the bay. Mt. Vesuvius is only 10 miles from the newly-won Allied positions.

Not only does the seizure of the peninsula and the occupation of the Neopolitan islands add up to a flanking movement against Naples, marked by Clark last week as one of the next Allied objectives, but the German withdrawal from Sardinia, admitted today by Berlin, gives the Allies several potential air bases from which to reach northern Italy and southern France.

Salerno Losses Are 'Extremely Light'

By MARK WATSON
(Representing the Combined United States Press)
(Distributed by International News Service)

WITH THE U S FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19—(Delayed)—(INS)—Although no precise report on our casualties is yet available for publication, it can be stated that in proportion to the task thus far performed by the Fifth army in the Italian campaign losses sustained have been extremely light.

This applies both to the American and British components of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's command and one surmises that it applies to the British Eighth army as well. Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops could hardly have made such remarkable speed northward except against scattered and relatively weak opposition, which automatically suggests light losses.

London Expects Quick Fall of Corsica

LONDON—(AP)—The quick fall of Corsica was expected in London today on the heels of the German evacuation of Sardinia which was seen as resulting directly from the Allied victory at Salerno.

One argument is that the Germans either had to hold both Sardinia and Corsica in strength or give up both and they had only elements of two divisions in the two islands before the push in Italy and fewer men afterward.

There was considerable jubilation here over the fall of Sardinia because it was felt that taking the island by force would have been considerably harder than the capture of Sicily, since it would have required a longer water haul.

Italian Planes Escape to Allies

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA —(AP)— Italian warplanes are continuing to escape from German-held portions of Italy and a considerable number of them have now safely reached Allied fields, northwest African air force officials said today.

Officers at mess near one beach were surprised to see two Savoia Marchetti bombers flying in low over the water preparatory to landing and later others arrived escorted by an American B-25 Mitchell.

Like the Italian fleet, the Italian air force appeared to be doing its best to comply fully with the terms of the armistice whereby they were bound to exert every effort to prevent the planes from falling into German hands.

Allies Wreck Plants, Airfields In Europe

LONDON — (INS) — Smoke-blackened wreckage marked industrial plants and three Nazi air bases guarding the invasion-threatened west coast of Europe today in the wake of heavy-assaults by American and British warplanes

(Indicating daylight raiders may have attacked targets in northern Europe this morning, the FCC reported the Danish radio at Kalumdborg went off the air shortly before noon.)

RAF typhoons struck at airfields near Merville in France and Woensdrecht in Holland at dusk yesterday while British-manned Mitchell medium bombers hit factories in the French city of Bethune.

These attacks followed a destructive raid by American two-engined Marauders on the huge Nazi airdrome at Lille, France.

German Officers Form Moscow Union

MOSCOW — (AP) — A "union of German officers" was formed here Sept. 12 by more than 100 German generals and other officers from five Russian prisoner-of-war camps, it was announced today, with the aim of bringing about the downfall of the Hitler regime and the establishment of a "free, peaceful and independent" Germany.

Calling themselves the "generals and officers of the sixth German Stalingrad army," they told their countrymen and army that Germany faced worse isolation than in 1918 and added, "continuation of the senseless, futile war might any day cause a national catastrophe."

The union, they said, will be part of the previously-formed "National Committee of Free Germany" which has been increased in size.

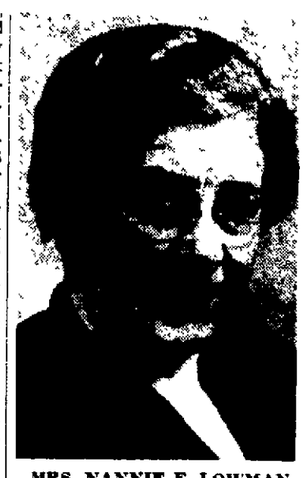
MRS. NANNIE LOWMAN, ACTIVE IN WOMEN'S AFFAIRS, DIES



MRS. NANNIE E. LOWMAN

Mrs. Nannie E. Lowman, 67, active in women's fraternal and social organizations, died Sunday morning at her home, 66 East Third street, after a lingering illness. She was the wife of J. W. Lowman.

She was born in Crawford county near New Washington in 1876 but spent the greater part of her life in Mansfield.

Mrs. Lowman was a member of the Women of the Moose, serving that organization several terms as recorder; a member of the Pocahontas lodge; Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Stars; the Security Benefit association which she served as president; a member of the Blue Star Mothers club, and a member of the Firemen's auxiliary.

She was a member of First Christian church and served as president of the United Society of the Women for a number of years.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Violet Zehner; three sons, Russell, John and Ellsworth Whitcomb, all of Mansfield; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Clements, and Mrs. Ray Bittinger and a brother, Samuel Bland, all of Mansfield. Three grandchildren and one great grandchild also survive.

The body was removed to the Geiger funeral home to remain until noon Wednesday when it will be removed to First Christian church to lie in state until 2 p. m. when Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger will conduct funeral services. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

west side of the square. The hut was set up by Stran-Steel company to give Mansfielders an idea of the housing units being built by the Mansfield company for fighting units overseas.

All proceeds from the show will go to army emergency relief. The relief organization aids men in service and their dependents in time of emergency. It is operated by army officers and functions wherever our armed forces are stationed in close conjunction with the American Red Cross.

The money from the fund is available in cases where a member of a soldier's family meets with accident, or serious sickness resulting in heavy medical expense. It is often used for emergency transportation and sometimes is used for giving aid in the form of a loan. However, the money is given in most cases as an outright grant for relieving desperate circumstances of a soldier who would never be able to repay the money from his small army pay.

Committees in charge of the premier include, ticket sales committee George W. Stephens, chairman, Mrs Gilbert Dobson, assistant chairman, Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith, Merle G. Pecht, V. H. Lodde, Miss Mary Cox, J. H. Gongwer, Mrs Walter E. Hahne, Mrs C. C. Minard, Mrs. C. F. Sattler, J. F. Carrigan, H. G. Brunner, J. G. Routzon, and publicity committee, R. D. Lindsay, Larry Hess, Orville E. Fields, Carl Kindt, Elmer A. Eckert, Grattan Johnston, R. G. Hiatt, Joseph G Blahnik, R. O. Richards, P. W. Endriss, and J. B. Baird.

CAPITAL HEARS OUSTER TALK

Washington Stirred By Rumor Powerful Forces Would Remove Gen. Marshall.

Simultaneously, Frank C. Waldrop wrote in the Washington times-Herald that he had excellent reason to believe that "General Marshall is out right today because he won't further subordinate his 'technical' views to the globe strategy of Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill." Waldrop wrote that top generals here were putting up a fight to keep Marshall as chief of staff and that they were trying to persuade Gen. John J. Pershing to appeal to the president in his behalf.

Waldrop's charge that someone was trying to bounce Marshall out of his job was underlineed by an editorial published in the well informed army and navy journal. It said it did not believe Marshall would be transferred but it included this language:

"Thinking only of winning the war in the shortest time and of saving every American life possible in connection with the bloody operations which it calls for, General Marshall, of course, has come into conflict with powerful forces which would like to eliminate him from the Washington picture, and place in his stead an officer more amenable to their will. It is not believed that the president will be induced to change his mind and to transfer him."

Mr. Roosevelt was not available today for inquiry.

Marshall, reached via the war department at his home at Fort Myer, Va., refused to talk to reporters. Other inquiries obtained pointed hints that Marshall wants and ultimately will get a combat command but, also, that it would not be feasible for Mr. Roosevelt now to utter a yes or no answer to a question about the future of his chief of staff.

These week-end reports inevitably will attract congressional attention. Reports, rumors and speculation now have gone so far that some observers are convinced it would be in the public interest for Mr. Roosevelt or Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson to make a definite statement on the subject.

FEW ARRESTS

Light Traffic Over Week-End Causes Decline.

Unusually light traffic on highways in the Mansfield area over the week-end was credited by police and state highway patrolmen for a sharp drop in the number of arrests for speeding.

Only three drivers, all from outside the county, were cited for speeding. A fourth motorist was arrested by the state patrol for failing to register a house trailer.

Charged with exceeding the speed limit were Emilie Fioretto, Cleveland; James A. McDaniel, Dayton, and Thomas J. Fulkerson, Cleveland. They posted $16.30 bond each and were released.

Hugh B. Baughman, Perrysville, cited for non-registration, posted $15 bond in municipal court and forfeited it by failing to appear for hearing today.

This, the communique said, was achieved at a cost of two American bombers and four fighters, the pilots of two of which were saved. For the period of the current Bougainville air offensive as a whole, American plane losses were reported at standing at a ratio of one to six for the enemy.

Task Forces Blast Two Jap-Held Islands

PEARL HARBOR, T. H.—(AP)—America's growing naval strength has lashed out again and in force against the outer fringe of Japan's zone of conquest in the Pacific, striking the enemy-held Tarawa and Nauru islands in prolonged attack.

The simultaneous assaults, made along the line of the equator some 2,000 statute miles southwest of Hawaii, began Saturday night (east longitude time) and carried well into the following day.

Their exact nature was not disclosed but the assumption was that they were spearheaded by carrier-borne torpedo and dive bombers such as raided Marcus island to the northwest on Sept. 1.

"Strong Pacific ocean area forces today conducted a heavy raid on the Japanese bases on Tarawa island in the northern Gilbert group on Nauru island to the west of the Gilbert group," said a communique issued by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet.

"These operations were carried out according to plan during the night preceding and for a good portion of the day of Sept. 19."

Then the two task forces sailed from the scene of their devastation, maintaining radio silence to handicap possible pursuit.

"Details of the operation are not immediately available," the communique added, and there seemed little likelihood they would be until the fleet units return to their bases."

New Ace Bags 11 Japanese Planes

U. S. HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC —(AP)— A new American flying ace has emerged from heavy raids on Japanese bases in the Solomons with a record of shooting down five Zeros in a single engagement.

Marine Major Gregory Boyington, 30, of Okanogan, Wash., accomplished the feat last Thursday as almost 150 Dauntless dive bombers and Avenger torpedo bombers, escorted by Fighters, raided the Ballale airdrome on Bougainville island. He now has 11 victories to his credit, and becomes one of the leading aces in the South Pacific.

This should be Blue Monday.

Our Tygers opened their football season Saturday night, lost to a Marion Harding team for the first time since 1927.

This is Monday, all right, but I find it hard to find anything blue about it. Mansfield fans may be blue about it. Some may even say: "Unh hunh, another bum season coming up. Whoever heard of losing to Marion?"

If that's the way they feel about it, then their spirit, their esprit de corps, their morale is not as good as that of the Tygers themselves.

Don't get me wrong. I do not mean that the Tigers are so proud of that 6-0 defeat handed them Saturday night. Far from it.

I saw a couple of 'em last night. "We got away to a fine start, didn't we?" they sarcastically berated themselves.

"That doesn't end the season," I reminded them.

"You bet it doesn't," they chimed in, "it just opens the season, and we'll make up for it at Elyria Friday."

Cocky? I wouldn't call it that. Just a determined, fighting spirit. And as long as they feel like that, I'm for 'em.

* * *

The few Mansfielders who saw the game must have been surprised at the way Marion jammed up the Tyger offense, and at the way the Presidents marched for the lone touchdown. The Tygers were surprised and they didn't know what to make of it, until after the game.

Then some of the Harding players told them that Mansfield had been thoroughly scouted — in the practice scrimmage a week before against Galion.

Scouting of games is a recognized part of interscholastic competition, but it is hardly cricket to scout practice sessions. The Hardings knew all there was to know about the Mansfield offense and defense.

The Tygers aren't giving any alibis for the defeat, although they believe they could have won if Mike Zivkoff had not been out with an injured shoulder

Some Mansfield fans seemed to think the clock ran overly fast in the closing seconds, with the gun leaving the Tygers stranded on the Marion one yard line, first down and goal to go.

The Tygers blame themselves for talking in the huddle and taking up the valuable time that could have been used in scoring the tying touchdown

You can bet they'll not waste time like that again. No team ever went anywhere with 11 quarterbacks.

Yankees Lose Two To Nats

May Have Hard Time Clinching League Flag.

By TED MEIER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

IT SOUNDS fantastic, but can it be that the New York Yankees will "blow" the American League pennant to Washington?

On top by a nine-game margin over the second place Senators and by 12 games over the third place Indians, the Yanks need to win only five of their remaining 14 games to clinch their seventh championship in eight years.

This would seem no hardship, but there is every indication that gaining those five victories will be one of the toughest tasks the Yankees have faced this year.

The fact that they missed clinching at least a tie for the title by dropping a doubleheader to the Senators yesterday may prove the turning point. The double loss, 3-2 in 10 innings, and 5-1, gave the Senators a sweep of the three-game series.

If the Senators win all their remaining 12 games, they will finish the season with 21 straight victories (remember the Chicago Cubs in 1935?) In that case the Yankees would have to win four games from the always difficult Detroit Tigers, Cleveland Indians, St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox to tie.

If the Cleveland Indians who beat Detroit twice yesterday, 1-0 and 6-2, win all 13 of their remaining games while the Senators win 9 of 12 and the Yanks only one of 14, the Tribe would finish on top by half a game.

The National League champions, the St. Louis Cardinals, who clinched the title Saturday, were beaten twice by the Chicago Cubs, 6-0 and 10-9. The New York Giants took a doubleheader from Brooklyn, 3-1 and 7-4.

Pittsburgh got back into the fight for second place by beating the Cincinnati Reds twice, 10-3 and 2-1. The Boston Braves made it five in a row over the Phillies, 3-2 and 6-5 in 14 innings.

The White Sox and the St. Louis Browns split, the Browns taking the opener, 7-1, and the Sox the nightcap, 6-1 The Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics also split, Boston winning the opener 14-0, and the As taking the nightcap 6-1

Shirley Fry Wins Matches

Takes Two Singles and Doubles Exhibition.

Shirley Fry put on a good show for Mansfield tennis fans at Woodlawn Tennis club yesterday afternoon.

The 16-year-old high school junior from Akron, who shares the national women's junior doubles championship with Doris Hart of Miami, Fla. defeated Lowell Bourns and Watty Slabaugh a set each in singles, and then teamed with Aris Franklin, Ohio State's No. 3 man, to beat Bourns and Slabaugh in doubles.

Taking on Slabaugh first she won 6-2, and then defeated Bourns 6-4 The doubles scores were 6-2, 6-3, 3-6.

The Akron girl played a consistent returning game, but showed she had the strokes for point clinchers. Largest gallery of the season saw the match which rings down the curtain on major tennis activities in Mansfield this year. Ruhland Isaly officiated.

Association Drops Seasonal Curtain

(By Associated Press)

The American Association dropped the curtain on its regular season yesterday with Milwaukee the champion by a 5½-game margin and Indianapolis the runner-up by a ½-game edge over Columbus Attention now centers on the annual play-offs starting tomorrow

Milwaukee closed its most successful season in history yesterday with 8-4 and 6-2 wins over the depending AA champion, Kansas City. This double defeat, coupled with St. Paul's two victories over Minneapolis, placed the Blues in a deadlock with the Saints for last place. The Millers barely escaped sharing the cellar by a ½-game margin.

The Saints' 13-9 and 9-3 triumphs over the Millers gave St. Paul its first intercity series from Minneapolis since 1934.

Indianapolis lost twice to fifth-place Louisville, 8-2 and 6-2. Columbus whipped Toledo 5-0 and 4-3.

In the International League semi-final play-offs, the Syracuse Chiefs gained a three to two edge over Newark by winning 4-0 yesterday. At the same time Toronto Leafs were eliminating Montreal, 5-1, with their fourth straight playoff win.

THE CLUBHOUSE

By CHIP ROYAL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK—Shades of a service man's favorite pin-up girl! The coming world series has more angles than Betty Grable has curves Just cast your glimmers over a few opinions advanced by major league players, coaches, managers and baseball writers They say:

"The first three games in New York favor the Yankees."

"The Cardinals have the edge in youth, speed, and playing skill."

"The Yanks can't lose because they'll be able to use Spud Chandler three times in seven games."

"It all depends on whether Mort Cooper can win the first game for the Cardinals. If he breaks that American League jinx, the Yanks will never see daylight.

* * *

"Joe McCarthy is too smart for Billy Southworth.

"Billy Southworth is too smart for Joe McCarthy.

"McCarthy's reserves are better than Southworths."

"St. Louis has better outfielders

Probably the smartest and truest remark made to date is that by a Yankee writer who, after failing to buy a box seat for a friend at the Yankee offices as early as Sept. 14 said:

"The players will share in the largest receipts of any world series."

Brother, that's more truth than poetry. Poor Ed Barrow, proxy of the Yanks, has been buried under an avalanche of ticket requests since Labor Day. All the war workers and their children's children want tickets — and the best in the house is none too good for them

"How about the ball games? Well Sir, all we know is that the Yanks have been talking nothing but revenge on the Cardinals since they went to Asbury Park, N. J., for Spring training last Spring

Spud Chandler, the present ace of the American league champs' pitching staff, echoed the sentiments of all the players when he yelled clear across the cold Jersey high school gym last April:

Bring on those Cardinals! All I want is another crack at them—and I hope we are the underdogs. We'll give them a series they'll never forget!"

Since then I have heard practically every member of the New York lineup say the same thing. Manager McCarthy has kept his public thoughts to himself, but it is no secret that Joe has been planning his Series strategy for months.

This will probably be his starting lineup: Weatherly, (waiting six years for a world series role); Metheny, (a surprising rookie from Newark); Johnson, (the rookie of the year); Keller, (a clutch clouter), Etten, (a Philly discard); Dickey, (the leading hitter in the league); Gordon, (ready to flash again); Crosetti, (a tired veteran); and Chandler, (the ace of hurlers).

Southworth admits that he doesn't know who'll start for the Cards.

"I've had too many injured players in the last few weeks to decide who to use," declares Billy "But I don't see where those fellows get that stuff about Cooper not starting in the series. Who else could I use? Mort's my top man!"

As for being afraid of the men of McCarthy, Southworth says:

"We beat them last year and don't know why we can't do it again! The first three games in New York shouldn't make any difference to us. We won the last three there."

* * *

Although the Cards' manager won't hazard a guess as to his starting lineup, he admits he figures these men as his regulars: Klein, (rookie replacement for Jimmy Brown), H. Walker, (Terry Moore's sub of last year), Musial, (the major's batting king), W. Cooper (Mort's brother), Kurowski, (last year's hero), Litwhiler, (once the best clouter of the Phils), Sanders, (Johnny Mize's replacement), Marion, (the best defensive player on the team) and Mort Cooper, (the American league's cousin.

Northwestern Team Vastly Improved Over Last Year

Northwestern, trampled on by every midwestern opponent last season, is a vastly improved eleven this year and already is being ranked with Purdue and Michigan as one of the teams to beat for the conference title.

It's all part of the influx of new players from other schools who are enrolled in the university's Navy V-12 unit. And, in addition, out of 50 players on the squad, approximately 20 are varsity holdovers from last year.

The 1942 team, despite the brilliant playing of its All-Western conference halfback, Otto Graham, could win but one game, that a 3 to 0 verdict over Texas.

The 1943 club, coached for the ninth year by Lynn Waldorf, will be well fortified with backfield material and adequate linemen.

Graham is the key to the Wildcat offensive hopes A brilliant passer, he completed 89 heaves out of 182 attempts last season for 1,092 yards despite the fact his team lost eight out of nine games.

Graham got off on the right foot this year when he sparkled in the All-Star game in Chicago by reeling off a 98-yard run.

With Graham in the backfield, Coach Waldorf is trying Vic Schwall, a freshman star; Herman Frickey, for two years a capable halfback at Minnesota; Dud Keen and Joe Scriba, veterans at Northwestern last year, and Henry Reichel, a transfer from Nebraska. Lynne McNutt, who won the quarterback assignment as a soph last season, again is the No. 1 candidate for the post.

At the ends, Bob Wallis, lanky senior, returns as sure-fire material at one post. The other job will be won or shared by Herb Hein, regular at Minnesota last season; Larry Halenkamp, another Gopher; Duane Sickels, soph last season; Vic Clark, former Nebraska player, and Ed Nyden, another Cornhusker Tackle spots are being played by Ray Vincent and Bill Ivy, last year's regular tackles. At the guards, Alex Kapter and Johnny Gent, 1942 regulars, appear to have won out again.

Len Golen, letterman in 1942, and Joe Partington, a Nebraska player, are making the strongest bids for the center spot.

Regulars from the 1942 squad not returning this season include Ed Hirsch, Bob Motl, Bud Hasse, Warren Karlstad, Tony Samarzia and Nick Burke. Motl was a fine end. Burke was an outstanding guard.

The Wildcats open against Indiana Sept. 25 Then follow games with Michigan, Great Lakes, Ohio State, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Notre Dame and Illinois.

Nine Buckeye Games Booked

Ohio College Grid Teams Get Into Action.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Nine of Ohio's 14 football-playing colleges see action this week-end in six games, with Ohio State's clash against Iowa's Pre-flight Seahawks headlining the Cards. The Hawks were 32-18 victors over Illinois in their opener Saturday.

A year ago, in the season's finale, Ohio's Big Ten and National Champion Bucks administered a 42-12 beating to the Preflighters, but the picture has changed since then. The Bucks have five juniors and a flock of 17-year-old freshmen this season, while the Pre-flighters are sparked by stars from the collegiate and professional fields.

Along with the Ohio-Iowa tilt, expected to attract more than 20,000 fans, these games are on the Saturday slate:

Baldwin Wallace vs. Case at Cleveland in the Ohio conference inaugural under the lights; Depauw of Indiana at Oberlin; Wooster at Ohio Wesleyan; Indiana's Hanover at Miami, and Bowling Green at Xavier (Cincinnati) in another night tilt.

In Saturday's frays Miami's Redskins gave the dope bucket a kicking by holding Indiana University's Big Ten Hoosiers to a 7-7 deadlock, while Bowling Green wrecked Ohio Wesleyan 18-7 in a battle of V-12 units. The Baldwin-Wallace 14-6 loss to Rochester a week ago didn't seem so disastrous after Saturday's set, in which that same Rochester team upset Yale's Bulldogs by 14-12.

Ohio State's coaching staff scouted the Iowa Seahawk-Illinois game Saturday, and since the naval contingent was forced to use practically all its talent and tricks, the Bucks should have a fair idea of what they're up against in the curtain raiser.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The first rumble of the bowling season brings word that Brig. Gen. D. P. Hardy, commanding officer at Camp Pendleton, Va., is asking keglers (and what does that word mean, anyway?) to contribute a few old bowling balls. . . . Seems that Camp Pendleton has six new alley beds but only five bowling balls.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Bob Phillips, Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald: "Bob Ford, who opened at quarterback and caught two touchdown passes for Fort Riley against Great Lakes, was fourth-string left halfback for Mississippi in 1940, his senior year with the Maroons. That gives you a pretty good idea of what it took in those days to play on one of our college teams."

SERIES SHORTSTOP

Frank Crosetti, Yankees — It would hardly be a World Series without Frank; this will be his seventh since he broke in with the 1932 Yanks. Played only one game in last year's series when Scooter Rizzuto did the shortstopping but is a regular again although he's hitting below his usual .250.

Martin (Slats) Marion, Cardinals—The lath that walks like a man and fields like a whiz . . . hit only .111 against the Yanks last fall but drove in three runs . . . his current batting average is around .280, the best he ever has had in the majors.

Byron Nelson Wins 15-13 Over Wood

TOLEDO —(AP)— Byron Nelson, Toledo Inverness club professional, is looking for new fields to conquer and it couldn't be surprising if he had his eye on the winner of the Sam Byrd-Harold McSpaden match in Chicago next month, a spectacle to be produced by George S. May, the Mr. Big of midwestern golf.

Nelson tied into Craig Wood, duration national open champion, over the week-end in a 72-hole challenge match for the unofficial world's match play championship, and wound it up at the end of 59 holes beating the Mamaronek, N. Y. star, 15 and 13

It was the worst defeat ever suffered by a champion since 1928 when Archie Compson walloped Walter Hagen, 18 and 17, shortly before The Haig won the British Open.

Coincidentally Hagen was on hand to referee the final round of the match. After playing the last hold on which he could get no better than a par four, he announc again his competitive days were over but he would do anything he could to aid the war benefit tournament.

So far as the Nelson-Woid match was concerned, there wasn't much doube about the outcome after the first half. Nelson played sub-par golf. Wood didn't. The Toledo professional was six under par for the 59 holes and Wood was nine over.

BRONCHITIS PUTS JEFF HEATH IN HOSPITAL

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Jeff Heath, Cleveland Indians outfielder, was in Lakewood hospital today, suffering from bronchitis. He probably will not finish out the season.

Dr. M. H. Castle, Tribe physician, said Heath would be confined to the hospital for a week and possibly longer. The season ends in two weeks.

LEAGUE MEETS

Women's City Association league bowlers will meet Wednesday night at 7:30 at Colony alleys to plan the season's schedule. All league bowlers and others wishing to compete in the league should attend the meeting. The league, which bowled on Sunday last year, will take the alleys on Wednesdays at 8:30 this season.

DETROIT LIONS BEAT CHICAGO CARDINALS

DETROIT —(INS)— The Detroit Lions was the "believe-it-or-not" team of professional football today.

Scoring a surprising 35-17 win over a favored Chicago Cardinals eleven yesterday, the charges of Coach Gus Dorais, who was making his pro debut, broke into the win column for the first time since Nov. 30, 1941 Then, too, they defeated the Cardinals.

Bagby and Smith Each Notch 16th Victory

Indians Take Pair From Detroit, Widen Gap In Race For Third.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — With the end of the American league season only two weeks away, Cleveland's Indians were almost certain today of finishing no worse than third.

Yesterday's 1-0 and 6-2 triumphs over Detroit in a double header widened the gap between the two clubs to four and a half games. Jim Bagby and Al Smith each notched his 16th mound decision as the Indians made their last home appearance. Bagby tamed the Bengals for the third time this year, 1-0. He accomplished it on the opening day, April 21, and repeated on Sept. 10.

Smith's 16th win marked a new high for his major league career. The veteran southpaw didn't have one of his better days and Allie Reynolds had to furnish help in the eighth inning, but the Tigers could score only one earned run.

* * *

Hal White allowed only four hits during his seven inning tenure in the opener but the Redskins utilized two of them in fashioning the game's lone tally. Hank Edwards started the fifth with a single, moved to second on Mickey Rocco's sacrifice and to third on a long fly by manager Lou Boudreau. He came in on Ray Mack's safety.

Bagby held the Tigers hitless until Doc Cramer smashed a single with two out in the sixth. Dick Wakefield garnered the other blow in the seventh.

The Indians blasted Tommy Bridges for nine blows in the afterpiece and secured four more during Roy Henshaw's two-inning appearance, but couldn't avoid treating the customers to a familiar exhibition in the fourth when they loaded the sacks with none out and failed to score.

The club is idle until Wednesday when it launches its third and last eastern trip at Boston.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Now that the St. Louis Cardinals have gathered in the 1943 championship, it seems the only competition remaining would be between the Cincinnati Reds, and the Brooklyn Dodgers for second place.

On the face of performances, however, neither club is showing very much of what it takes to win ball games.

With a one-game lead over the Reds, Brooklyn dropped a doubleheader to the New York Giants yesterday, 3-1 and 7-4.

In a truly Alphonse and Gaston manner, the Reds also lost a couple to the Pittsburgh Pirates, the first by a score of 10-3, and the second, 2-1.

* * *

Elmer Riddle, Cincinnati starting pitcher in the opener, who gave a one-hit performance the last time out against the Pirates, lasted but one inning. He allowed three runs. Clyde Shoun and Ed Heusser followed him.

The Pirates got 14 singles and gave Rip Sewell an easy journey in taking his 21st victory.

The Pirates won the second game in the last half of the ninth. Johnny Vander Meer had a 1-0 shutout wrapped up as he went to the mound in the final inning, but the Pirates smashed four singles to end the affair and sweep the three-game series.

Yesterday's second game was the last on the road for the Reds this season. They return home today and open the home stand against the Giants Wednesday.

Etzel Takes Possum Title

Beats Carl Wiseman 4 and 2 In Finals.

Ted Etzel yesterday won the Possum Run golf championship by defeating Carl Wiseman 4-2 in the 36 hole final match of the club tournament.

Etzel got away to a 5 up lead on the first 18 in the morning, and stretched it to 8 up by taking the first three holes of the afternoon round. Then Wiseman hit a hot streak, winning the next five holes, but it was too long a road to travel, and Etzel held on to his margin the rest of the way.

* * *

In a semi-final match of the first flight, Boyd Crall defeated Frank Vild on the 20th hole, and will meet the winner of the Byrnes-Rossborough match for the flight championship. Crall sank an eight foot putt on the 20th to win.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

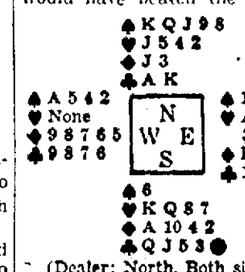
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T WARN THE ENEMY

Even though you are absolutely certain you can defeat the opponents' contract, there is one kind of situation in which you should not double him. That comes when you are not prepared to double some other declaration into which he can escape. In other words, why warn him of his danger and scare him out of it into a contract in which you can't hurt him? Better tactics dictate your beating him not doubled, instead of causing him to play a different contract which he can make.

East never should have doubled the 4-Hearts. Had he paused to think about it, he would have realized that the entire basis for his double was the fact that he liked the suit. His hand was almost certain to take two or more tricks in the trump suit, plus one in diamonds, so that a trick of any kind in his partner's hand would have beaten the contract.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

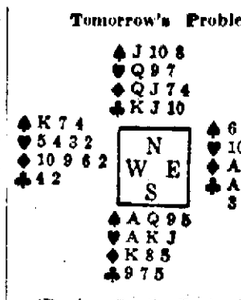
North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Dbl	4 NT

The double warned South that East much have the hearts bunched against him, as surely there could not be enough high cards out to cause trouble, if North had a sound opening bid.

As events developed, South made the 4-No Trumps, after the diamond 6 was led to the Q and A. South immediately led the spade 6 the A coming in and another diamond going to the K. Even if East had been able to lead a third diamond, it could not have hurt South, who now was able to score four trick in each black suit, plus a second one in diamonds, to give him the 10 he needed.

At the 4-Hearts contract, South would have been set with a trick in diamonds, one in spades and at least two in hearts.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

How should East figure out the way to beat South's 3-No Trumps on this deal after West leads the diamond 2?

MEN HELP OUT IN HOSPITAL

PHILADELPHIA —(U.P.)— The tired business man who directs hundreds of workers during the day now spends his after-office hours running elevators, cleaning floors and making beds.

The "V" squad at Jewish hospital, comprised of 42 business and professional men, accepts any job that has to be done at the institution—regardless of how menial, and without waiting to be told.

Attired in his white uniform with a "V" sewn on the sleeve, each man does a specific job for six weeks, then is shifted to another task. Before they took up the work, the volunteers received a 10-week training course from doctors, nurses, dietitians and the administration staff.

STOCK MARKET RESUMES MOVE TO HIGH LEVEL

Leaders Post Fractional To Point Gains In Early Trading Activity.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market today resumed its advance with leaders up fractions to a point in early dealings.

Prominent gainers at a fairly active opening included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio, Kennecott, Douglas Aircraft, Loew's, Electric Power & Light, U. S. Gypsum, Continental Oil and U. S. Rubber.

Holders of steels studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that some consumers were becoming more conservative in their purchasing of the metal in an effort to avoid excess inventories an all strictly military items.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Mill buying gave the wheat market support at the opening today and prices were fractionally higher. Other grains held firm in a quiet trade.

Wheat started unchanged to ⅝ higher, September $1.48⅞-1.49 and rye was unchanged to ⅜ higher, September 1.06¼.

BARES TORTURE

CAMBRIDGE, O.—(UP)—Japanese on Guadalcanal tortured and murdered two Catholic priests and bayoneted the sisters and cut the to betray the invading American forces, Lt. Col Terence P Finnegan, 39, of Norwich Conn., an army chaplain, said today

Finnegan said the Japanese bayoneted the sister and cut the throats of the priests because they refused to advise the U. S. marines to withdraw in the face of threatened Japanese reinforcements.

THEATERS

Limit On Love.

A love affair with a ten-day time limit is the basis of the musical "The Sky's the Limit" which co-stars Fred Astaire and Joan Leslie. The picture, now showing at the Ohio is the story of a romance between a Flying Tiger pilot disguised as an ink civilian and a girl photographer for a picture magazine. The time limit is the length of the flier's leave before he reports for duty with the navy. As the plot build up to a gay climax, the couple dance their way around Manhattan's entertainment spots with three notable routing and four hit tunes by Johnny Mercer and Harold Arlen

Best Role of Career.

Filmdom believes Deanna Durbin has the best role of her career in "Hers to Hold" current at the Madison theater. She appears as a debutante who goes to work in a war industry and finds romance as well as the satisfaction of serving her country. Playing opposite her is Joseph Cotten, an army flier whose loyalty to the service nearly thwarts his devotion to the girl he must leave behind. Also on the Madison bill is "Report to the Aleutians," the authentic, under-fire battle story of the conflict with the Japs in the Aleutians dramatically shown in the government technicolor film.

An engineer had misjudged the length of a string of cars he was backing into a barrier wall adjoining the tavern.

BUILDS 7 HOMES

J. R. Cogen, Mansfield contractor, today obtained building permits at the city building for the construction of eight new homes on Taylor road and said he would construct 15 homes in the city within the next 90 days for war workers.

Four of the new housing units will be on Cook road and three on Yale drive, Cogen said. They will be of brick veneer construction and will cost approxmately $6 000 each, he said. Priorities for building materials were obtained under the government housing program, the contractor explained bill by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) to postpone induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until after Jan. 1, in his preliminary remarks Marshall noted that Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, had given the committee many details in opposition to the proposal in previous testimony.

Says Induction Lag Would Be Worse Blow Than Japs or Nazis Can Strike.

Marshall said that the army plans to activate soon 430 and 440 new battalions, adding that four divisions now had only 1,500 men each and needed an additional 11,000 each

The general added that 50,000 special troops, including engineers, mechanics, and signal corps men, were being shipped to England this month. Along with 600 bomber crews. These latter, he said, were not to increase the weight of bomber participation but to maintain the operation of bombers already there.

For the first time in history, Marshall said, trained men are on hand for deployment on all the fronts of the world.

The chief of staff said that 75,000 additional inductues were needed monthly to keep the armed forces at par and to bring the army to the goal of 7,700,000 by the end of the year.

Citing losses in personnel through sickness and other causes, Marshall said there is no way of estimating battle casualties accurately

"We don't yet know the casualties of Salerno," he said "We have been busy fighting—tabulating can come a little later."

Marshall told the committees that he was being pressed by Gen. Dwight D Eisenhower, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and others for trained troops.

These units have to be created, trained, disciplined and prepared for operations," he said "If we don't do that now, we cannot do it in time"

Marshall said that demands for bomber crews had been heavier from England than expected and that fatigue, rather than casualties, put pilots out of action in the Mediterranean theater.

"You cannot conduct war all over the world and not consider the loss of men going and coming," he said, referring to their inaction while traveling rather than to personnel losses. "The pipeline must be kept filled."

"If it comes to emotions, we in the war department don't have the right emotions," Marshall testified. "We have some 700,000 fathers in the army now. What happens to them?"

The general reiterated previous assertions that "men over 38 are a burden."

A possible compromise by which the drafting of fathers might be delayed 30 days while selective service re-examines physical and occupational deferments was reported under consideration by members of the senate military committee.

Senator Bridge (R-N H.) disclosed some committee members have been discussing the feasibility of offering such a proposal as a substitute for a bill by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) which would postpone the induction of pre-war fathers for the rest of this year.

"I don't know whether anything will be done about it or not," Bridges told a reporter, "but that might be acceptable to a number of senators who don't want to vote to draft fathers but still don't want to deny the army any men it needs."

The committee arranged today for Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Admiral Ernest J King, commander of the fleet, to air their views on the military necessity of drafting fathers.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York City was scheduled as a witness and committee members also have invited Bernard M. Baruch, advisor to War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, to testify.

With debate scheduled to begin tomorrow or Wednesday, leaders said a final vote probably could be reached late in the week

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) has announced he will offer an amendment that fathers under 30 years old must be taken first.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON — American democracy in all of its power can be felt as one reads President Roosevelt's report on the war.

For Mr. Roosevelt it is an unusual message. Not only is it one of the longest he ever sent to congress, but it proposes no controversial legislation, is moderate in defense of past actions, and it contains no purple passages.

Mr. Roosevelt has tried in plain words to tell congress and the public all that he could about the war, how it has gone, what the outlook is, why some things have been done and why other things have not been done. He has been successful also in picturing the enormous labors involved, and the great work accomplished, which bears fruit in the slow march of our forces toward victory.

Clapper

Since the outbreak of the war in Europe we have increased production of petroleum by 60 per cent, chemicals by 300 per cent, bituminous coal by 40 per cent, iron ore by 125 per cent, and steel by 106 per cent.

In the last two and a half years, power plants built for installation in navy vessels equalled the horsepower of all hydroelectric plants in January, 1941.

Many such figures in the message help to picture to the American peopde the size of the war production achievement. It is monumental. In rapidity of development nothing perhaps in history approaches it.

This is a story of democratic achievement befitting the heroism of our soldiers on the beaches of Salerno.

Regardless of all that may be out of joint on the home front, American industry, American production genius, yes, and Washington's planning and grasp of the giant shape of this war—all of those have combined to make victory possible. America's contribution, as described first in General Marshall's recent epic report and now in President Roosevelt's sweeping survey, takes its historic place beside Britain's unbreakable will, Russia's rugged sacrifice, and China's patient waiting. All are essential to total victory.

During the two months congress has been in recess, America has produced about 15,000 planes and 281 merchant ships, Mr. Roosevelt says. In the first eight months of this year we produced 52,000 planes, 23,000 tanks, 40,600 artillery weapons, and 13 billion rounds of small arms ammunition.

Modern war is no game for little powers. War must be fought by the big powers. And if we are to get rid of wars the big powers, must carry the load.

Some of the little powers have heroic records in this war—having fought until they were conquered and ever since. Others of the little powers have busied themselves largely with trading with both sides. There must be policing after the war and little nations that have been trading with both sides will have some obligation not to assist in the rearming of Germany or any other aggressor by trading in articles that otherwise would be withheld from these trouble-makers.

This report of President Roosevelt's shows so clearly what is required to win modern war. Fortunately for free civilization there happened to be joined on our side such mighty industrial nations as Russia, Britain and ourselves. But for them Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Spain and all of the others would by now be no better off than Denmark, and more likely a good deal worse off.

The months of hard fighting have now begun. Is it too much to hope that the smaller nations, which have been feeding supplies into Germany, can now be persuaded to throw their economic resources fully to our side to withhold all nourishment from the weakening carcass of Hitler?

INSURANCE RATE SHOWS DEFEAT OF NAZI SUBS

Charges Decrease as Shippers Beg For Cargoes Again As In Peacetime.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Today's war risk insurance rates and shipping certifications are not altogether cold statistics for they tell a story that is perhaps the best proof of the successful war against enemy submarines.

The insurance rates and certifications relate to commercial cargoes, not to strategic war materials. They show that "peacetime" shipments have been resumed. Instead of shippers begging for space, space is now begging for shippers.

The figures come from insurance statisticians who follow no straws in the wind. Their calculations are based on bald facts. There are no rough estimates in their schedules. Their rates have gone steadily downward; on Sept. 15 there was another sharp reduction.

The War Shipping Administration's insurance division and private underwriters announced the reductions, on cargoes in the overseas trade, including shipments to and from ports in the Mediterranean and Indian ocean, as well as on coastwise commerce.

For instance, the rate on export shipments to Indian ports east of Cape Comorin but not east of Calcutta, via Atlantic or Pacific, was reduced from 10 per cent to 8.50 per cent; the rate from Atlantic or gulf ports to Palestine, Syria and Turkish ports not beyond Mersin and Cyprus was cut from 10 to 8 per cent.

The surrender of the Italian navy and the opening of the Mediterranean, no doubt, has had some effect on the war risk rates but, on the other hand, success of the U-boat warfare has had a decided effect. In the month of August more enemy submarines were sunk than merchant ships, the Office of War Information reported.

United Nations and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic during August amounted to only 10 vessels as compared with 45 for the same month last year.

Officials of the New York regional office of the department of commerce report that all commercial export shipping is "going ahead now without delay." No figures on volume, were available, however.

MOSCOW MEET 'JUST PRELUDE' TO BIG PARLEY

Washington Expects Session of Ministers Next Month To Lay Groundwork.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The projected conference of British and Russian foreign ministers with a high ranking representative of the United States in Moscow was viewed today as an obvious prelude to the long sought Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference.

The Moscow meeting, tentatively scheduled for next month, was projected as a gathering of foreign ministers. It remains uncertain, however, whether Secretary of State Cordell Hull would undertake so long a journey.

The conference would gain from his presence because it will have the widest possible scope of discussion, the agenda touching all urgent phases of war and post-war problems. Even the Far Eastern post-war situation may be canvassed because of the Soviet Union's intense interest in that theater although she is not a belligerent.

Public discussion of identity of the American representative is strictly curbstone speculation so far. But W. Averell Harriman and Harry Hopkins have been mentioned.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is scheduled to represent Great Britain and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov will be host.

Since none of the ministers will have power to make definite commitments, the Moscow meeting is regarded as a prelude to another of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Premier Josef Stalin.

The recent Quebec conference made it apparent that Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill believed many important decisions could not be made without further information about Russia's post-war policies. That condition indicated that the ministers' meeting would cover a broad field of political and military questions.

They may discuss territorial questions such as the future of the Baltic states and the occupied parts of Poland, Russia's desire for defensive positions in Finland and the status of the Dardanelles, the Black sea exit which provides Russia's only warm water outlet.

Immediate political questions which may be discussed include policies to be effected in liberated areas, post-war treatment of Germany and France's role in post-war Europe.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Mr. Churchill may have something in his basic-English language of 800 words, even though expression would be bleak and stilted and might cause serious nervous disorders in some of us to whom English or Americanese is the mother tongue. As I understand it, this would be not unlike the Frenchman's way of speaking English in his early efforts, as when he wants to say that someone kicked someone in the pants and it comes out that the party of the first part made a blow of the foot to the pantaloons. However, that would suffice and, on the base of the 800 words the other peoples, if they would be so kind, could build more elaborate vocabularies, ornamented with bywords and slang. If the whole world knew basic English we could at least understand each other.

Pegler

But, would we?

I am thinking of one word that has been the subject of many orations, books and tracts and the cause of many bitter, personal hatreds and fights, which has many meanings in a nation, meaning our own, which nevertheless reveres it.

The word is democracy.

This means, according to Webster, a government in which the people exercise the supreme power through a system of delegated authority, periodically renewed. And that means that if a majority of the people make a decision, that decision is binding on the minority, even though the majority should vote democracy out of existence or vote away all rights of a minority. Literally it does mean that if the people of the United States were to divide on strict racial lines and the whites were to vote to rescind the citizenship of the colored brothers, that would be a legitimate and virtuous exercise of the faith by which we profess to want to live.

The Communists call their one-party system and the dictatorship of one man twentieth century democracy on the far-fetched theory that Joseph Stalin is the people's choice, freely elected by representatives of the Russian people, to exercise authority in their name, during their pleasure.

In California only a few years ago they had a close call and a severe fright in a referendum on a long and complicated proposition called Ham 'n' Eggs. This was put forward by a small group of adventurous demagogues and promoters and was taken up and indorsed by the CIO under Communist domination and by the more candid Communists. Disguised as a system of old-age pensions, it was in unmistakable effect once you took the care to analyze it, a proposal to nullify but without repealing them, the constitutions of the nation and the state to confiscate all property and to elect a dictator (named in the proposition on the ballot) and empower him to name his own successor.

The Communists and many discouraged and needy Americans who deeply believe they loved our form of government, cried "Democracy! Majority rule!" in defense of the proposal and there was no denying that they were on good ground. If the majority voted to do these things in a regular election, that was their right in a pure democracy.

The big business interests and the home owners and farm owners and more conservative citizens of the middle class were really frightened and don't let anyone tell you they weren't. Money was raised and a strong counter-propaganda was started to get out the vote of the apathetic element to save representative, popular government and the economic system of capitalism in California and, on election day Ham 'n' Eggs was defeated by no more than 3 to 2 or thereabouts, a very close call. So you might say that the money interests, the propertied class, stood off dictatorship and preserved the American system of government.

But a Communist could say, and I could not dispute him, that if the majority had voted a dictator into power and voted to abandon permanently their popular right to depose him, that would have been a classical operation of the democratic process.

PROBE DEATHS OF 7 IN CRASH

Officials Schedule Inquest After Bus Rams Train at Illinois Crossing.

(By International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN CITY, Ill. — An inquest was scheduled today into a Greyhound bus-Missouri Pacific train crash in which seven persons were killed and 53 injured.

The crash occurred yesterday on a grade crossing two miles south of Johnstown City, Ill., as the bus, in which every seat was filled and passengers stood in the aisles, traveled downhill.

The dead were J. R. Hart, 38, of Memphis, driver of the bus; Ed White, 62, Johnstown City; Dorothy Jane Pate, 41, Ypsilanti, Mich.; Eddie Lois Marshall, one-year-old, Hutting, Ark., Negro; Louis Lookofski, Paducah, Ky.; Mrs. Georgia Hawkins, Milwaukee, Negro, and an unidentified white woman between 40 and 50, who was hurled underneath the wheels of the train from the bus and decapitated.

The bus, enroute to Chicago from Memphis, Tenn., plowed into the first car of the train, powered by a diesel engine, which pulled two cars. The first car toppled over as the bus rammed it. The second car was derailed but remained upright. The train was bound from Marion, Ill., to St. Louis.

Bus passengers told investigating officials that the brakes appeared to fail after the driver had applied them.

DEPUTIES FIND MAN, 66, DEAD

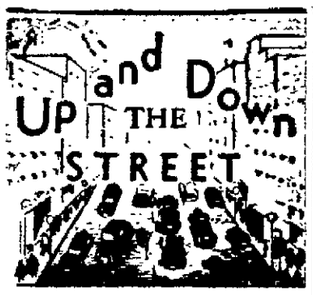
Officers Summoned To Home By Neighbors.

Simon Moras, 66, was found dead at 2 p. m. Sunday at his home on Longview avenue by sheriff's deputies.

Neieghbors, alarmed because the man was sick and unable to unlock his door, called the sheriff's office. When deputies arrived the door was open and Moras was lying dead near the door. Coroner L. B. McCullough said death was due to natural causes.

Moras formerly lived at the home of John Gladish, 564 North Mulberry street, and was employed at the L. A. Barnett company for several years before he retired recently because of ill health.

The body was removed to the Geiger funeral home pending funeral arrangements.



There's a fad sweeping Mansfield now that bids fair to become the popular parlor game of the hour. It's a "talking table" moved by some mysterious power to answer questions addressed to it. Whenever four people get together the table which works on much the same principle as the ouija board is put into operation. Persons who haven't seen it work are skeptical and those who have swear by it. One of the latest believers is Capt. Jesse Schwab of the city police. Last week he dashed madly around town buying bank night insurance because the table had told him he would win. Needless to say the table was wrong and Capt. Schwab is poorer but wiser.

Mrs. Robert M. Morris, 40 Wellington avenue, credits a News-Journal want ad and a penny post card with helping her buy a $100 bond in the Third war loan drive. She was wondering how she was going to get enough spare money to buy a bond when she saw a want ad for a washer. She remembered the washer she had not been using and told the advertiser about it in a post-card message. The advertiser bought the washer for $65. Mrs. Morris added $10 to that amount and invested it in a $100 bond.

"But I think the kids were the real winners," groaned Dent, "they can't feel this bad."

BOY'S SLAYER FACES SENTENCE

Death Penalty Mandatory For Youth Who Killed Child With Hammer.

(By Associated Press)

CELINA—Common Pleas Judge Raymond A. Younger said today he would pass sentence this week on Louis Hand, 17-year-old farm laborer who admitted beating 6-year-old Richard Stober to death last July 3 because the child "razzed" him.

Convicted of first degree murder without recommendation of mercy by a jury of eight men and four women, the youth faces a mandatory death sentence. Judge Younger said defense counsel would be given an opportunity to file appeal motions.

Hand, who was employed near Rockford on the farm of Rufus Stober, Richard's father, was arrested July 5 at Greenville, one day after the boy's body was found on the adjoining farm of his grandfather, Logan Stober.

Ora McClellan, Greenville police chief, said Hand told officers: "Richard razzed me about not greasing the culti-packer and this made me mad. I grabbed a claw-hammer and hit him on the head three or four times. I also hit him on the neck and over the heart."

WHERE'S MUSSO?

Reports Say He's In Bavaria as Mystery Continues.

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — The whereabouts of former Italian Dictator Benito Mussolini today continued to be the subject of conflicting reports.

Zurich dispatches received in Stockholm last night said "Il Duce" is living in a palace at Tutzing, near Starnberger lake in Bavaria. A Berlin communique said that Mussolini spent several days" at Adolf Hitler's headquarters after Nazi airborne troops freed him from Italian captivity.

CHAPTER XXVI

Anxiously Willie May and Hi-m Sugg stood in the little earing where the Hickorys had ade camp for the night and aited for the bandits to decide eir immediate disposition. The guments appeared heated but last one member disengaged mself from the group and oved toward them.

"We're gonna let you go—both you," Jake announced. "We aven't harmed Miss Broderick. er own pappy couldn't of treat-l her better. I brought her here r self-protection." He appealed Willie May in a wheedling ice. "Isn't that right, girl?"

She nodded agreement. "You dn't do me any harm. I'll not ll anybody I've seen you until ou have had plenty of chance get away."

"Say till after tomorrow night."

"All right."

"The same goes with you, Mr. igg?" Jake asked.

"Yes."

"You was tellin' us the best ay to slip past the posses. Sup-ose we go into that more care-lly."

"I'm willing to help you all I in in return for your trust in ," Sugg said.

Jake showed his jagged teeth a sarcastic smile. "I figured aybe you might be."

He led the promoter to the ot where the outlaws had held eir conference. They talked for long time. The girl watching em could see that Hiram Sugg as assuring Hickory over and er again that he was doing his st for them. The quarterbreed eeded a lot of convincing He ll looked sullen and dubious hen they returned Cass brought her horse to Wil-e May. The girl walked across Rush Greer and offered her nd.

"I hope you get away all ght," she told him.

The huge graceless scamp took r small hand in his big paw vkwardly. "I'm hoping that yself," he grinned.

"My father owns a ranch near ampasas, Texas. If you ever hange your way of life there ll always be a place there for u. Please remember that."

"I'll remember you said so and y thanks now Mebbe J. A. ght have a different opinion. 's likely I won't trouble him."

"You don't know my father. e'll stand by this promise as rongly as I would. Do come and e."

Sugg helped her to the saddle. He followed her up the narrow trail to the ridge above.

They drew up there and looked down at the camp.

"I suppose I was more frightened than I need have been," the girl said. "Very likely I wasn't in any danger at all."

Her companion did not want her to take that point of view. "On the contrary, I think you were in a very great danger," he said, gravely. "I can tell you now that you are safe. Jake Hickory is a blackhearted scoundrel who would spot at nothing to save himself. If I hadn't come—" He stopped, apparently appalled at the consideration of what might have occurred.

"They couldnt have touched me while Rush Greer was there." She put her horse in motion again. "It's strange that such a man could have thrown in with villians like the Hickorys. He's bad, I reckon, but not the way they are. I wonder what starts a man on crooked trails when there really is a lot of good in him."

He did not turn to her. His eyes were on the trail ahead, a faraway look in them. She knew he was not thinking of Greer but of one much closer to him. "God knows," he answered. "There is a lawless streak in him—or he gets in some kind of a jam—and he is gone. All of us have insurgent impulses." He waved a hand toward the hollow from which they had just come. "There but for the grace of God goes Hiram Sugg."

She hardly breathed. It flashed into her mind that he was about to confess. But she realized presently he had no such intention.

He added, cheerfully complacent· "Fortunately there is such a thing as character. In the old days many a cattleman—to take an example—builds up his herd by rustling and mavericking, but J A. Broderick never branded a calf that didn't belong to him."

Willie May's cheeks flushed with anger. She felt a resentful contempt for this man who was trying to set himself right by comparing himself to her father. She knew now that all her emotion about him had been based on wrong premises His good looks and charm and force were not reflections of a fine spirit but part of the false front for depravity. A hot shame raced through her.

The men in the camp had watched Sugg and Miss Broderick ride in silhouette along the top of the ridge. Jake slammed a fist violently into the palm of his left hand.

"We're fools for letting them go," he cried. "I've a mind to ride up yet and bring them back."

"No need to get goosey," Cass advised carelessly. "She'll keep her mouth shut. Sugg will see to that. She's always been crazy about him."

"Why?" demanded Jake. "What does she see in that smooth dude? I never have liked the fellow."

"I'm shy of sleep," Greer announced, yawning "Think I'll make up arrears now. We'll be riding all night."

"A good idea," Bart agreed. "I'll take a snooze myself."

In his slow heavyfooted way Greer walked toward the horses. "Blacky has grazed the grass short," he called back to his companions. "I'll picket him in another spot."

He pulled out the picket pin and wound the rope as he moved along it to the head of his mount. He fumbled with the bridle a moment, his eyes stabbing at first one and then another of the Hickorys, then with swift agility vaulted to the saddle and prodded Blacky to a gallop. He washed for the willows in the draw, body low in the saddle. His judgment at once had rejected the ridge trail. Before he reached the top the rifles of the other bandits would have riddled his body with bullets.

Taken by surprise, the Hickorys lost an invaluable moment. Before the bark of their revolvers sounded, the horse was plunging into the willows. Slugs cut the leaves above Greer's head.

"Get him, boys," Jake cried. "Get him."

He ran for his rifle and snatched it from the ground. Greer had vanished, but Jake could see the young trees shaking from the violence of the redbearded man's ride. Hoping for a chance hit, he blazed into the growth.

Already his brothers were making for their horses. They dashed into the willows regardless of the branches that whipped at them. At the head of the draw they could see Greer far to the left. He was circling back to strike the park below the ridge. There was a boulder field near the other exit where he could make a stand if hard pressed.

Cass pulled up and fired at him twice from the saddle, but he was too excited for accurate shooting. He jerked his horse to a canter. Greer dropped into the park and disappeared. When the Hickorys saw him again he was racing across the floor of the park. Jake tried a shot at him. He did not look back until he reached the boulder field. There he turned waved a hand in a derisive gesture and dropped out of sight among the rocks.

Jake Hickory pulled up and signaled to his brothers to stop. It would not do to ride into an ambush.

"He'll pick us off when we get close," Jake said.

"Might be," Bart agreed. "Or he may keep right on going, knowing we'll lose time to make sure he's not waiting there for us."

"We can't pile in hell-for-leather," Cass snapped. "That would be to easy for him. I'll swing around and get at the boulder field through that scrub oak over to the right. I'll mighty soon find out if he's there yet."

* * *

Young Hickory dropped back into a draw and worked up it over the lip of the park. Ten minutes later he shouted to his brothers to come forward. Greer had guessed what they would do and had made the most of that quarter of an hour to put distance between him and his pursuers.

From the far end of the boulder field the outlaws looked across a long dip and saw Greer ascending the slope opposite.

"He's fixing to join Sugg down on Dry Creek, looks like," Bart guessed. "We could cut him off at the gap if we hustled."

They rode fast over rough country, taking a short cut through a sawtoothed saddle in the hills. It brought them to a district where the huddled hills were not so high but crowded closely one against the other. Half a mile to the left of them there was another break in the range. Toward this gap they headed, to cut off Greer as he came out of the defile.

The pass was still two hundred yards from them when a rider emerged from it. Jake did not wait an instant to raise his rifle. He drew a steady bead and fired.

"I got him," the gunman shouted. "Right spang through the heart."

That he had scored a hit was sure. The horseman clutched at the horn in front of him, fell forward against it, and slowly slid head first to the ground.

Out of the pass a second rider came. She drew up, swung from the saddle, and ran to help the fallen man

"Goddlemighty, it's the Broderick girl," Cass cried. "You shot the wrong man, Jake."

"By cripes, you have," Brad echoed. "You got Sugg."

The girl helped the wounded man to his feet, put an arm under his shoulders, and supported him as they moved toward the defile from which they had come. He pushed her away, as if to turn back to his horse. His companion looked anxiously at the three outlaws lined against the sky, then gave a little gesture of surrender. She ran back to the horse Sugg had been riding and dragged a rifle from the scabbard beside the saddle.

A second time Jake's rifle cracked, as Cass flung the barrel skyward.

"What you trying to do—put a rope around all our necks?" the younger man cried.

Jake turned on him a feral face out of which bloodshot eyes stared wildly. "It's got to be that way now," he said hoarsely. "If ever she gets to her friends she'll set the pack on us. We got to finish what we started."

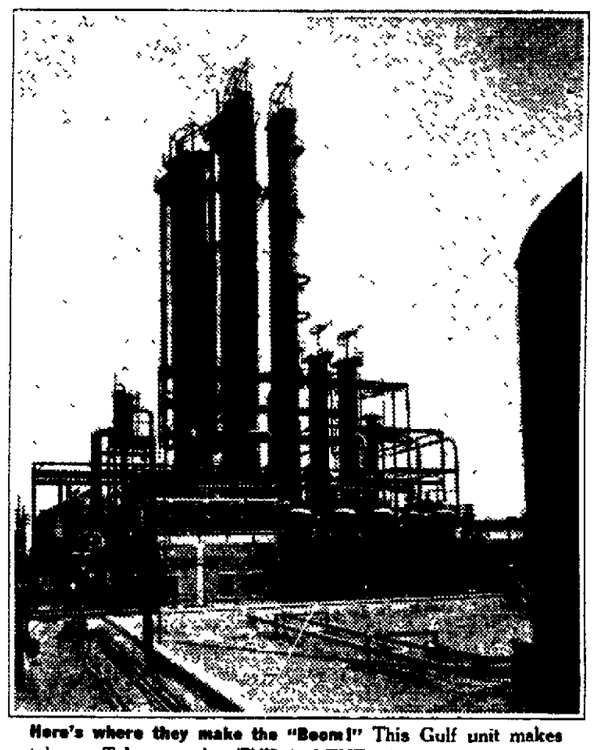
We hope this battle report gets to the front!



Here's where they make the "Boom!" This Gulf unit makes toluene. Toluene makes TNT. And TNT, when placed in a shell and fired from an American cannon, makes a loud "Boom!" that heralds the downfall of America's enemies.

NOT MANY DAYS from now the giant butadiene plant for making synthetic rubber at Port Neches, Texas, will be going full blast.

The story of this plant ought to make mighty cheerful reading for our fighting men.

For it's more than the story of a battle fought and won—the battle to get the rubber we must have to fight this War.

It's a cracking good illustration of how Americans at home are backing up Americans at the front. It shows how the folks at home can get together, and by drive, ingenuity, co-operation, and an incredible amount of plain hard work, take the toughest problems this War can hand out—and lick 'em to a standstill.

12 months ago, this butadiene plant . . . the biggest in the world . . . was on the drafting board. By the end of this year, it will be turning out synthetic rubber ingredients at the rate of 100,000 tons annually.

Certainly, the story of how five of the country's great oil companies worked as one to help design, build, and operate the Port Neches plant, is as heart-warming a tale as any that has come from the Home Front in this War.

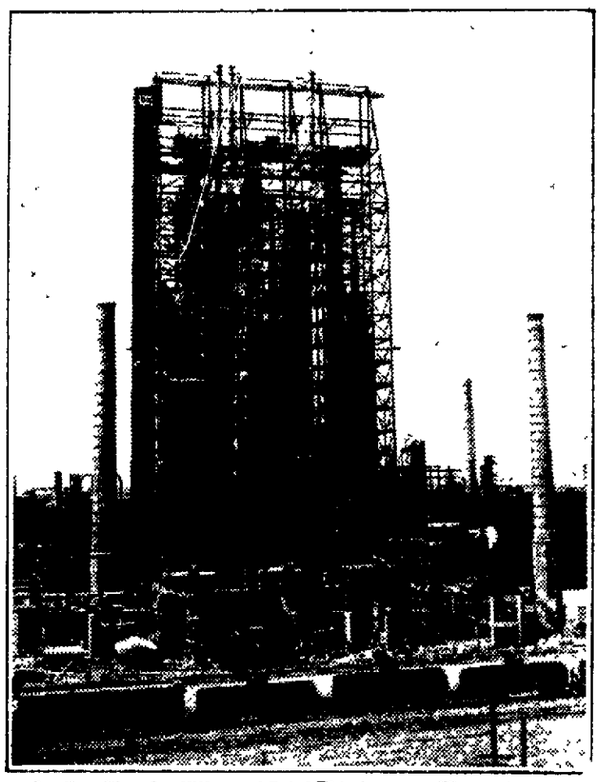
But there are others

Besides producing the vast amount of oil needed for our mechanized forces, our Navy, our gigantic war industry and our essential civilian use, the oil industry has tackled—successfully—two huge additional jobs

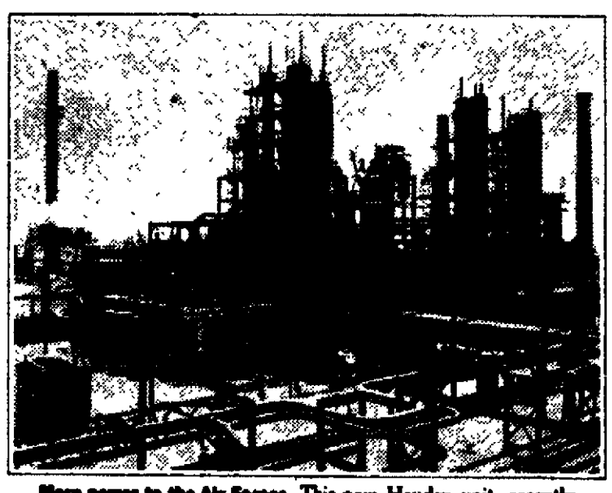
1. The production of high-octane gasoline for our young giant of an air force;
2. The production of toluene for explosives.

Supplying rubber for the wheels of our war machine—high-octane gasoline for its wings—explosives for its shells . . . can you think of three jobs more vital to victory?

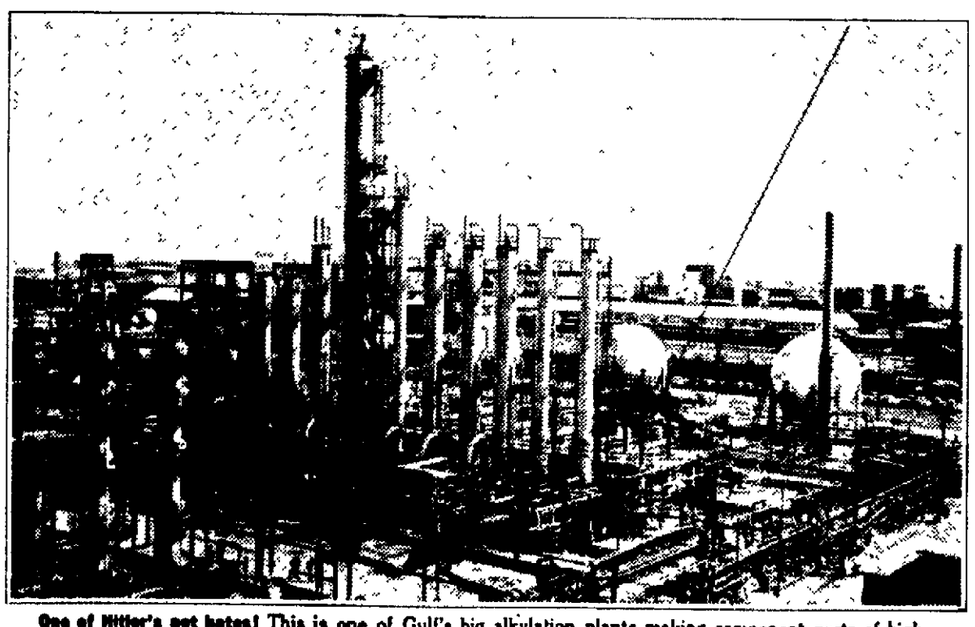
As the Port Neches plant and the pictures on this page prove, all three jobs are being done—and well done. And for the part Gulf is privileged to play in the doing of them, we are both thankful and proud.



Another Blow for Hitler and Tojo! This is a new Thermofor catalytic cracking unit built by Gulf . . . to turn out high octane aviation grade gasoline for Allied fighters and bombers. What's more, it makes feed stock for the synthetic rubber plants, too!



More power to the Air Forces This new Houdry unit, recently completed by Gulf, produces another component of aviation fuel. It's helping U. S. and Allied forces bomb our enemies to "unconditional surrender."



One of Hitler's pet hates! This is one of Gulf's big alkylation plants making component parts of high-octane aviation gas by the carload. And America's high-test gas helps give our Air Force, the RAF, and the Russian planes a very real edge over the Luftwaffe!

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1943.

Rain, heat and riches are still unfairly distributed.

What would parents do without schools to take their youngsters off their hands for part of the day?

It is estimated that there are 2½ million jitterbugs in the United States—which indicates what a long road education still has to travel.

After the War

OLIVER M. W. SPRAGUE is a familiar name in the economic world. Professor of banking and finance at Harvard, for several years adviser to the Bank of England, and consulted by the treasury department at Washington, Prof. Sprague is a voice to listen to. He has given two important messages to the annual convention of the American Bankers' association.

One was that, if inflation follows the war, the market for United States government bonds will hold up better than any other class of securities. Any man who skimps his purchases of War Bonds because he expects his other holdings to give him a big profit is a fool. The other was that price controls cannot safely be lifted as soon as the war ends.

"Who," asked Prof. Sprague, "are to be the fortunate purchasers of the first 2,000,000 new passenger cars at the time when there may well be a demand for 8,000,000?" The temptation will be great for would-be buyers to bid against each other and force the price up.

The expansion of production for civilian use will be sudden after the war, therefore the country cannot act as it might in a period of slow business increase. The return to normal ways of doing business must be slow.

Spreading Knowledge

IT IS WELL KNOWN that education in this country is still irregular in quantity and quality, and people in many areas are not getting a square deal. It is also better realized than it used to be, that ignorance in any part of the nation tends to keep down the average everywhere. In short, education is not merely a local problem, but a state and national problem.

The conclusion seems to follow naturally, as stated by Charles H. Lake, superintendent of schools in Cleveland, Ohio, that "the education of the poorer communities must be subsidized by the richer communities." It is one country, he says, and not a conglomeration of communities, each going its own independent way without consideration of others. He thinks the best plan is a triple one involving local, state and federal support. This cannot come all at once, but it seems like the logical course of development.

It will cost a lot of money. But every good thing is expensive. That is, at first. Eventually education, like other valuable things, pays well.

Union Tomatoes

MOST Americans will probably agree that it is "pretty small potatoes"—or rather tomatoes—when soldiers volunteering to work in a New Jersey canning factory, to save the tomato crop from rotting, have union dues taken from their pay. Technically, perhaps, a case can be made for it, but practically and humanly the procedure has a bad smell.

There is a good old scriptural saying that "the life is more than meat, and the body more than raiment." It might be said just as truly, without any intention of scorning labor union principles, that work is more than technical rules. Especially when, as in this case, the purpose was not to prejudice unionism, but to save foodstuff for a hungry world.

There are bound to be some collisions of practice and principle in any set of rules. The best rule—and this one also is from the Scriptures—holds that "the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life." In a time of industrial controversy and undue sensitiveness, it is well for both employers and employes to remember this.

The Proper Weight

IT SEEMS that the tables of weights and heights often seen on weighing machines are not dependable. Tall people with one kind of frame ought to weigh more than those with different bony structure. But the University of Illinois comes to the rescue with a formula for finding out how much anyone should weigh.

First, one runs a tape measure around the body, getting "the unexpanded girth at the end of the breast bone." Then divide the result by four, square that result, multiply by the number of inches in the height and divide by 27.

This is all rather mathematical and mysterious, but it seems to work. The result is the ideal weight for that person. If he weighs too much, he could always give some of his points away to the skinny member of the family. If too little, he'd better add pancakes to his breakfast.

World Opinion Wins

OF THE SIX principles of national and international policy expressed so effectively by Secretary of State Cordell Hull the other day, perhaps none is more important than the familiar expression he quoted from the American Declaration of Independence, "A decent respect to the opinion of mankind."

A callous lack of regard for the opinion of the world in general is perhaps the greatest stumbling block of Nazi policy. It flouts the familiar principles and faiths by which men live, in all civilized lands. And therefore its practitioners cannot succeed in the long run. The thinking and feeling and familiar comment of the ordinary man and woman defeat them in the end, no matter how great their power and daring.

Chiang's New Honor

CHIANG KAI-SHEK has been made president of the Chinese Republic for a three-year term, succeeding the late Lin Sen. He will combine his new duties with the continued leadership of the Chinese armies.

The honor is a fitting recognition of his services. He is as important to China as Washington was in the days of the Revolution, or Lee to the Confederacy. China has done well by herself.

WIRED FOR SOUND.

Peak of Hardships for Nation's Civilians Now Believed Reached

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Unless we meet serious reversals on the continent, there is little likelihood that civilians will undergo any greater war hardships in the coming months than they have in the past.

The reasons for this are pretty complicated and I could find nobody in WPB who was willing to be quoted on it. In the first place, the Army and Navy apparently have gotten over their fever of overbuying. Not only have they let up on the purchase of some commodities, but they are even turning others back into civilian channels, for example, woolen cloth. And Army cotton good requirements next year will be only half of this year's.

As a matter of fact, the threat of rationing clothing has almost completely disappeared, although it once was so imminent that orders were drawn to put it into execution.

Also, U. S. production has far exceeded expectations and in spite of production lags in certain instruments of war, we've got more factory space than we know what to do with. If the manpower and a few critical materials could be found, that space could be put to production of civilian supplies.

As a result, WPB's Office of Civil Requirements is clamoring for relief of some scarcities and is likely to get at least a portion of them. For example, the laundry service situation has become so critical in some areas that any day now we may hear that the manufacture of washing machines and electric irons may be resumed—on a curtailed basis, of course—but resumed.

Although there won't be any new vacuum cleaners for the duration, an increase in the production of brooms and carpet sweepers already has been authorized.

Meat shortages may end any week now. For months the United States has been in the ridiculous predicament of having a surplus meat on the hoof and a shortage in the larder. The War Food administration is trying out the system of lifting slaughtering quotas. It is believed that may break out the bottleneck. If it doesn't something else will be tried. At least there's a 50-50 chance civilians soon will resume acquaintance with a porterhouse.

As a matter of fact, except on some items in a few scattered sections, there's not much likelihood now of any food shortages this winter. Of the essential foods, butter is the most critical, but WFA has cut the military's layaway quota from 30 to 20 per cent this month and will give them none at all next month.

As for automobiles, gasoline and heating fuels, it's another story. There will certainly be no more automobiles for the duration, but OCR plans to have replacement parts provided to keep cars now on the road in repair.

The gasoline situation won't get any better. The reasons are two: military requirements are exceeding expectations and increasing monthly; and chiseling on the part of civilian drivers has outstripped the estimates of the most pessimistic.

In the east, at least, the heating fuels situation will be certainly as serious this winter as it was last.

That's the way it adds up at the moment and even a slight glance at the whole picture discloses that civilians here will have less to complain about than any peoples fighting this war, and some who aren't.

Health and Diet

By DR. CLENDENING

High Blood Pressure

Correspondents ofen write me for a cure for high blood pressure. There is no such thing as a cure, only a prolonged period of management.

The remedies which have been recommended from time to time include mistletoe, garlic, watermelon seeds and half a hundred others.

Whenever you find that many remedies recommended for a condition, you have a pretty good idea that none of them are any good. The old idea of a strict diet with no meat has also been given up as producing no really noticeable results.

There is no use making a person acutely uncomfortable by taking away things that have become a habit with him because the management of a case looks forward to a long pull, even to the end of life, and if the doctor sets too high a standard the patient will not live up to it.

For some reason most people with high blood pressure are overweight. I do not think the overweight is the cause of high blood pressure because one sees a certain number of quite thin people with good, substantial, booming pressures.

Reducing Helpful.

If overweight is present, however, the first step in management is to attempt to reduce it. This does not necessarily lower the blood pressure much, but it is common sense because weight reduction lowers the strain on the heart muscle. Pulling 230 pounds upstairs is more work on the heart than pulling 180 and by just that much, multiplied by the total movements of the day, does weight reduction help.

Early to bed, even if not early to rise, is another rule. Ten hours out of the twenty-four in bed, whether one sleeps or not is just so many hours of relaxing instead of tensing all the parts of the circulation. A nap after lunch is also a good rule. If one gets used to it, it will not interfere with the sleep at night.

If not a nap, several periods of complete relaxation a day will do wonders. Lying down with something over the body to keep warm, in a quiet room with no distractions, the muscles relax one by one—the neck, face, shoulder girdle, arms and legs. Don't have the radio on and don't try to read.

Effect of Drugs.

Drugs have little or no place in the management of high blood pressure. Sedatives may occasionally be needed, but not too often. If the individual is accustomed to a cocktail or highball before dinner, it will do him no harm to continue; in fact, it itself has a relaxing effect.

Tobacco is a somewhat different matter. It causes spasm of the arteries, and is just the opposite to relaxing. If the individual has been in the habit of smoking a good deal it is unwise to take him off altogether, but he should cut down on it.

Long vacations and long weekends are advisable. In fact, this would be a good plan for nearly everybody over 55, no matter what his blood pressure.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Salerno Casualties Spotlight Military Intelligence Calibre

WASHINGTON—Faulty military intelligence information which is reported to have contributed to heavy casualties and terrific fighting at Salerno has focused the Washington spotlight on both the army and navy intelligence units.

That something has been wrong with intelligence operations in both services is indicated by the steady turnover of their chiefs. No chief has remained more than about a year in either Naval or Military Intelligence. Latest to go is Admiral Harold Train, easy-going, likeable chief of Naval Intelligence, now being relieved.

In three years, the navy has had the following quick succession of Intelligence officers: Admiral Walter S. Anderson; Captain Alan G. Kirk; Capt. Theodore S. Wilkinson; anud Admiral Train.

The army's record is similar. Since 1940, its Intelligence has seen the following turnover of chiefs: Col. E. R. McCabe; Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles; Brig. Gen. Raymond Lee; and Maj. Gen. George V. Strong.

Meanwhile the efficient FBI has been under one man for well over a decade. J. Edgar Hoover has grown up in the service, has picked good men, and is responsible not only for the tough life of kidnapers these days, but for the amazing lack of sabotage in the U.S.A.

One reason attributed for inefficiency inside the naval and military intelligence has been the practice of bringing in blue-blooded young men from the best families and giving them cellophane commissions (you can see through them but they protect from the draft). This practice started before the war when the chief job of an intelligence officer was as a military attache abroad, posts where emphasis was placed on good manners and a private income.

This has now been largely discontinued, but both services are still glutted with boys culled from the social registers.

Nazi Death Trap.

One trouble at Salerno was that military intelligence reported only a skeletonized division of Nazis at Naples. Therefore, it was considered safe for Gen. Mark Clark to land with a medium-sized force. However, Marshal Badoglio warned General Eisenhower at the last minute that U. S. intelligence officers were wrong and that the Germans had two and a half divisions at Naples.

In fact, the Nazis were simply lying in wait for American troops on the bluffs over the Salerno beaches. They were all ready for a massacre. In view of Badoglio's warning, additional troops were sent to Gen. Clark immediately.

But if U. S. intelligence had been working properly a different landing spot might have been selected, not so intensely defended by the Nazis.

Memoirs of MacArthur.

Lovely Louise Atwill, ex-wife of Gen. MacArthur, is preparing her memoirs.

One incident in the scintillating tale, which will tickle almost every husband and wife, runs like this:

Scene: The MacArthur suite in Manila. Time: 8:35 p. m.

Mrs. MacArthur is seated before her dressing table putting a last do-dad in her hair. Her hair is long and not easy to manage. She has on an evening gown, obviously is dressed for an official dinner. Behind her stands Gen. MacArthur, arms folded, looking very dour.

Mrs. MacArthur: "Doug, what do you mean by standing behind me with your arms crossed like that?"

The General: "You realize, of course, Louise, that we are due at Malacaan Palace for an 8:30 dinner and it is already 8:35?"

Mrs. MacArthur: "All right, uncross those Napoleon arms of yours and quit making me nervous. I'm hurrying, but I'm not going to the Governor's dinner looking like a frowsy hag."

(The General remains standing, arms folded on his chest).

Mrs. MacArthur: "I said uncross your arms and banish that Napoleonic pose. I'm not going to be dictated to."

(No sound from the General. He does not uncross his arms).

Mrs. MacArthur: "I'll give you until I count ten to uncross your arms."

(She begins counting. The General does not move.)

Mrs. MacArthur: " . . . eight . . . . nine . . . . ten . . . All right you asked for it."

(Mrs. MacArthur breaks her hand mirror over the General's head. It cracks and flies in many pieces. Finally they go out to dinner).

Note: Friends of MacArthur's are divided regarding the significance of breaking that mirror. Some say that the bad luck from the mirror led to MacArthur's defeat at Bataan and the surrender at Corregidor. Others point out that the seven years of bad luck had run its course long before Bataan, and that MacArthur had had pretty good luck anyway before Bataan. So they conclude that either breaking a mirror may not mean much after all, or else the bad luck omen was dispelled by the fact that the mirror was smashed on MacArthur's head and that it was his wife who actually broke it.

It Says Here:

—By D. K. W.

MAYOR LaGUARDIA wants to spend "several billion dollars of the taxpayers' money on a public works program to cushion the changeover to peacetime production after the war. He's just 10 years too late.

We already spent those "several billions" and some more, too, trying to public-work ourselves out of a depression which ended by itself when the war forced the politico-professors to take the squeeze off industry and say, "All right, go ahead and produce."

If the people get a chance to pull together and try to get the country out of debt after the war the only "cushion" that will be needed will be for the frowsy-headed theorists to land on when they are forced to let go of the public feed bag.

The Saga of the 'Newly-Weds' At Mohawk Lake's Hofbrau and How the Evening Finally Turned Out

MOHAWK LAKE, N. J.—The 100 people or so who were in the Hofbrau at Mohawk Lake the other Saturday night about midnight would be surprised to know the ending to this story.

Now the Hofbrau on Saturday night is a very gay place. Everybody comes, young and old, families and everything, and they sit around at tables and eat and talk, and a little fellow in a white suit plays the piano and sings in an old-fashioned tenor, and everybody is friendly and has a very great time. Things were going along like this the other Saturday night when a couple came in, bare-headed and in summer clothes.

They sat on a bench, on the same side of the table, and ordered something to eat, and talked and listened to the music and paid little attention otherwise to what was going on about them, or to the people.

Each seemed very much interested in what the other was saying and since each one during his say had quite a long say to say, and was very animated about it, an impression got about the place.

The impression was first born, it is probable, in the piano player's mind, for he went over and asked them what they would like him to play. They said play a couple of our old-timers, "Who?" and "Lady Be Good."

So he started playing and singing, and they went over and stood behind him and listened, it was so pretty, and helped him sing a little now and then when they could remember the words. The crowd thought it was great too, and they gave a big hand when it was over.

Then the piano player asked them if they weren't just married, and they said yes, just two days ago.

The piano player must have spread the word, for three or four people went over and gave the girl much sincere and earnest advice on how to live happily, just how to handle a husband, what not to do and so on.

Then the couple, left alone, got started talking again, and they must have been in a very deep discussion about something, because they were facing each other and were talking with their hands too, and very explosive about it, and another impression got about—that they were having a quarrel. Their first quarrel, maybe.

But they were all unaware that anyone was paying any attention, you see, so they were very much startled indeed when all of a sudden the piano playing stopped, and there was a great silence all over the place, and out of the silence came a loud voice from somewhere, saying:

"Aw, kiss and make up."

And that was followed by a louder and closer shout, sort of like an order, which said:

"Go ahead and kiss her!"

So the man and girl looked around, and every person in the place was looking at them, waiting. So the man, being no doubt a gentleman, leaned over and kissed her, a great big one, and then the wildest applause and shouting and hand-clapping you ever heard broke out all over the place.

And then, one by one, every person in that Hofbrau filed past and shook hands with them, and congratulated them on their marriage, and wished them long happiness and many things, and it wasn't any joke either, for they were all very radiant about it, and serious too. And the couple smiled and accepted, and thanked them all.

And as the last ones were filing by, the place was closing for the night, so the newlyweds left too, along with the others, and got in their car and drove away with people still "good-wishing" them off into the night.

They drove away practically busting, for there was certainly a joke on somebody. For both of them had been married many years, and very happily too, and not to each other. So they drove on home and told their respective husband and wife about it, and everybody thought it was funny.

P. S.—I know this story is true, for I was there and saw it. In fact I was the "bridegroom."

A Farmer's Diary

Beating the Frost

LUCKILY, a killing frost has not yet reached our neighborhood. Last week a relentless cool tang was in the air. The sky was clear. Stars twinkled frigidly through the crisp, still atmosphere.

For three consecutive mornings, just at dawn, I walked out upon the lawn, barefoot, to test accurately if any small icy particles had stiffened the tender grass. Each morning I came back upon the front porch jubilant, with dripping aching feet. No one can know the feel of first cool autumn, I believe, so well as he who goes unshod about the thick moist grass of lawn or meadow.

Each morning I visited my soybean fields, pulled the long green stalks apart and felt the oily pods to know how much larger they had grown in 24 hours. I could detect a difference, but with all the optimism I could muster I could not believe the crop would be out of danger, and into the drying stage, before Oct. 1.

Our little crop of corn is still at roasting ear stage. It seems beans and corn are racing for maturity—and I hold the stakes.

Silo filling began some days earlier than usual. Several days last week I heard the movement of the community tractor. I watched the heavy dark green corn fed into the cutter and caught the odor of chopped moist forage. The small bundles of bound corn are extra heavy now and the lift upon laddered wagon is no easy task.

I saw the weary neighbors work long after dusk until the last full wagon was unloaded and then drive home to do their chores and have their evening meal. Lights gleamed from kitchen windows and less brightly from the stables and the barn. There is no busier time on Honey Creek than the present.

At another neighbor's barn, a few days later, the yellow tractor stood with the silage cutter near. Out in the field, about dusk, a quietly moving tractor pulled the corn binder along the tall green rows. Sheaves lay thick on the ground. Just at the corn's edge, long lines of thick sorghum, similarly cut, lay ready. Beyond the sorghum, heaps of slightly withered soybeans showed. On the morrow, the tall well-built tile silo was overflowing with these three crops, mixed, for the succulent winter feed.
